THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOLUME XIV. TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 30, 1883. PRICE 5 CENTS

NEW YORK NEWS.

THE EVENTS OF THE DAY IN THE AMERICAN METROPOLIS.

Jem Mace and His Maori Half-Breed Arrested—All About Slade—The Removal of Archbishop Hughes's Bones—Solemn Ceremonies—Explosions in the Street, Etc., Etc.

Special to The Constitution.

NEW YORK, January 29.—Jim Mace, the recently returned prize fighter, and his Maori giant, Slade, were arrested here to-night on the charge that the proposed benefit sparring exhibition to come off at the Madison Square garden, was virtually a prize fight with gate-money for the stars. Bail was found at a late hodr, and was given by R. K. Fox, of the Police Gazette. A hearing will be had to-morrow morning at the Johnson market police court.

SUSPICIOUS SPORTS.

The impression prevails among local sporting men that Slade is no fighter compared with Sullivan, and that Mace's pretended anxiety to arrange the match is a cover for his design to make money by the exhibition. Too much publicity has spoiled the speculation, as it has aroused a public sentiment which compels the police to take action.

Mace, who has been in Australia for seven years, arrived here with Slade, his half-breed bruiser, on Friday night. Since then the rougher part of town has been in an uproar. Mace and pupil were out walking Saturday, and Nassau street was blocked with the crowd. They went over to the Astor house rotunda, and the place was soon jammed.

A LITTLE MILL.

Among the persons who were eating at the round tables were Barry O'Brien, a fourth ward politician, and John Conroy, otherwise known as O. B., one of Billy McGlory's right-hand men. They engaged in an excited discussion of the merits of Sullivan and the Maori. Andy Kelly was near by. He says that the men clinched, and that Conroy knocked O'Brien out in one round. O'Brien then seized plates, knives, forks, eggs, and whatever was handy and hurled them at Conroy. They missed him and fell among the crowd. A soft boiled egg struck the silk hat of a mild old gentleman. He took off the hat, looked at it ruefully, and hastened out. Anxious to get the crowd out, the hotel proprietor hurried Slade and Harding up stairs by a side door, and they left the hotel, by the Vesey street entrance. Here they were joined by the others. They took three coaches and drove up Broadway to Harry Hill's.

The next visit was to Red Leary's, in Twenty-third street. Mike Cleary and Barney Goodwin, who are friends of Sullivan, were in the saloon, and, according to Andy Kelly, made a great deal of talk, and finally offered to fight Slade in a rear room. No attention was paid to them. Then Cleary went up to Slade and tried to pull his hand from the pocket of his overcoat. For a moment Slade's eyes flashed, and Kelly says he expected to see Slade stand Cleary on his head. Slade merely thrust Cleary to one side and the party went out.

HOW SLADE LOOKS.

Slade is certainly a fine looking athlete. He has a fighting physique. His skin is of a bronze hue, his cheek bones are high, and his large eyes are gray, with a queer twinkle in them that lights up his good natured face. His nose is prominent, with a slight curve downward. He has the large mouth which old-timers used to say is one of the signs of a good fighter. His arms are not large. He seems to be all shoulders and back and big hands.

MR. BERGH AND THE MAYOR.

Mr. Bergh wrote Mayor Edson a letter saying, "In the name of decency and honor I beg your honor to see to it that the ordinary requirements of civilized life be respected by the absolute prevention of that shameful contest—as well as all similar ones—which law and public opinion have long ago denounced." Seats were sold to-day for Mace's benefit to night at two dollars apiece. Mayor Edson says: "I am determined to stop all brutal exhibitions in the city."

SOLEMN CEREMONIES.

The Removal of the Bones Archbishop Hughes to the Cathedral.

Special dispatch to the Constitution.

NEW YORK, January 29.—The impressive ceremony of removing the remains of Archbishop Hughes from the crypt of St. Patrick's church to the new cathedral began to-day. They will be completed to-morrow with a solemn service, in which a score of archbishops and bishops and 150 priests will take part.

THE OLD TOMB.

Nineteen years ago the remains of the great archbishop were laid to rest in the old cathedral. The tomb was a bare, arched chamber, with an earthen floor, the walls of rough brick covered with rougher plaster. Over against the wall opposite the entrance were two coffins, one resting on the other. They contained the remains of two Sisters of Charity. In the middle of the chamber, and occupying its full length, was a long rectangular box of plain wood, painted to imitate mahogany. At one end of the box moulded the dusty remains of what had doubtless once been a wreath. It had fallen to pieces and the dry leaves were scattered over the surface. A plain deal box covered with the relics of a rotting wreath, stretched out on a bare floor under a cold arch, held all that was left of the great archbishop.

THE SERVICES AT REMOVAL.

The portion of the ceremony held to-day was quiet, and attended only by a few of the clergy and the immediate relatives of the deceased prelate. After being carried to the cathedral the coffin was placed on a catafalque prepared for its reception in the main passage, immediately fronting the sanctuary. The catafalque is seven feet long by three feet wide. It is set on a platform, two steps leading up to it, on the upper step the candlesticks with candles, which will continue lighted through to-night. The whole structure rises about five feet six inches from the floor. All is draped in severe black, the catafalque covered with a pall of plain black velvet. The pulpit is draped in like manner, with heavy hangings of velvet. There is no ornamentation of any kind save arches of flowers over the bier.

TO-DAY'S SERVICES.

To-morrow morning the clergy will assemble and take their places in the chancel at ten o'clock. The clergy will chant the solemn office of the dead and the cathedral choir will sing the mass, which Archbishop Carrigon will celebrate, the cardinal being present. Mgr. Preston will preach the sermon and the cardinal will give the benediction. After the benediction the remains will be placed in the tomb set a part for them and the first niche in the catacombs of the new St. Patrick's cathedral of New York will be filled by what is left of him who laid the corner stone. The marble slab bearing the memorial inscription above given will be set in its place, the tomb sealed up, and with this the solemn ceremony will end.

EXPLODED STREETS.

The Habit New York Streets Have of Blowing Up—An Explosion.

Special to The Constitution.

NEW YORK, January 29.—The frequent explosions of the gas collected in the man holes of the American steam heat company have become a source of actual danger in many of the down town streets. There seems to be no remedy short of filling up the man holes.

BEYOND CONTROL.

The charter given to the company by the board of aldermen has put it beyond the power of the municipal authorities. In case of great danger at any point the board of public works will blockade the street, so that the public instead of the company will suffer.

WHAT THE EXPLOSIONS ARE LIKE.

From the Sunday's Star.

An explosion similar to the one at Nassau and Fulton streets, occurred yesterday on Broadway, near Maiden lane, injuring three persons, and again illustrating the dangers of the explosive mines with which the streets in the lower part of the city are being honeycombed. The explosion occurred at 11:30 o'clock, as Broadway was crowded with pedestrians and vehicles, and the detonation was so loud that it could be heard blocks away, above the noise and rumble of traffic. The cause of the explosion was gas accumulating from a leak in the pipe of the Mutual gas company in one of the man-holes of the American steam heating company at the upper crossing over Broadway at Maiden lane. The leak had not been detected and the mixed air and gas which had accumulated in the man-hole was ignited by the stump of a lighted cigar or a spark from a horse's hoof striking against the pavement. The man-hole is near the easterly side of Broadway, and is eight feet deep and four feet wide. It is used to give access to the cock controlling the steam pipe. A cover of iron weighing about 200 pounds fits into the hole about two feet from the surface of the street, and is protected by a heavier one on a level with the pavement. All the gas which escapes in the neighborhood is collected in the man-hole, which serves as a gasometer, and when mixed in the ratio of seven parts of gas to three parts of air, it forms a highly explosive mixture as powerful almost as gunpowder. When the explosion occurred a sheet of flame and a cloud of lampblack burst out of the hole and rose to the height of the third story of neighboring buildings. Accompanying the lampblack and flame was a mass of debris and the broken remnants of the lower man hole cover, which had been rent into pieces, and flew out of the man-hole as if discharged from a mortar. Pieces of the iron fell on the roof of the seven-story building at No. 1 Maiden lane, and several flew into the windows of the third floor, occupied by the Lancashire Watch company, and smashed several panes of glass. Three men passing over the crossing near the man-hole were knocked down by the concussion, and one of them was severely burned by the flame that burst out of it. Great alarm was caused by the explosion, and the occupants of the neighboring houses hastily left them.

ASSEMBLED BONDHOLDERS.

Who Make Tennessee the Text for Some Powder-Smelling Talk.

NEW YORK, January 29.—A very large meeting of Tennessee bondholders was held in the clearing house to-day, to take action on the Tennessee state debt. Eugene Kelley opened the meeting. President George S. Coe, of the American exchange bank was selected chairman. In a short speech, Mr. Coe compared the state debt of Tennessee with those of the other states, and it should be a feeling of patriotism that the credit of the country be re-established as to state debt. Ex-Congressman S. B. Chittenden thought that Tennessee for the sake of her own credit should pay her debts. Colonel Taylor, of the Continental national bank, said the southern states were suffering from a financial disease worse than Turkey or Egypt. Colonel R. A. Crawford, of Georgia, and Dr. R. S. Moran, talked in the same strain, reviewing the entire financial condition of the state, and expressing the sentiment that Tennessee should pay her debts. Resolutions that the "people of the states demand the repeal of the eleventh article to the amendments to the constitution as the best way to restore their former good name and credit; that this meeting approves of the resolution introduced in congress by Hon. W. R. Moore, of Tennessee, making a provision for a repeal of article eleven, and for the enforcement of the obligation of contracts; that the senate be petitioned to adopt the resolutions and the various exchanges invited to co-operate in urging their passage," were adopted.

WOMAN'S WORK.

An Insurance and Accident Company Formed and Carried on for and by Women.

Special to The Constitution.

NEW YORK, January 29.—A curious experiment in the insurance business, is to be made by several well-known ladies. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Phelps, Mrs. Eliza Greatorx, the artist, Mrs. Eliza Howard, and others, are announced as the incorporators of the Women's Mutual insurance and accident company. It will open business to-morrow. No men will be insured save for the benefit of some woman. An admission fee is charged, and the members are assessed when a death or an accident occurs

The Efforts of Two Great Eaters.

There was an unusually large number of friends of the quail-eater present at "Gabe" Case's Saturday afternoon. Mr. Walcott's table was spread with the choicest linen. Around the edge of the table-cloth there was a fringe that would have been too good for a lambrequin and too delicate to be used as a lap-robe. There was a napkin also, which corresponded in elegance to the table-cloth. Selected bits of celery hung gracefully over the edges of the glass and cast an exquisite shadow on a plate of butter underneath it. Hours of patient toil and earnest endeavor had been fooled away on that butter. It was sliced, shirred and scrambled, moulded into evergreen trees, potnards and gasjets, until it looked altogether too lovely to eat. The top was smooth, and gave to the whole figure an appearance of being very bald. Peas, potatoes, iced water, and pepsin formed a bulwark around the table and prevented the quail from escaping. At 4:20 p. m. the quail-annihilator sat down and the work of destruction began. Mr. Walcott ate as though he had never eaten a quail before. And he washed the birds down with less pepsin than usual. He spoiled the first quail in just six minutes, and obliterated the second in eight minutes. His effort received a volley of applause from the gallery whereat he smiled and looked wan.

Henry Edgerton, of Pearsall's, L. I., on Friday eveuing, ate on a wager of $10 thirty-seven hard boiled eggs, two mince pies, and drank two quarts of ale, in one hour and thirty minutes.

NEW YORK NOTES.

J. H. Copleston is a passenger on the steamship Republic, of the White Star line, for Europe. Mr. Copleston is Mr. Abbey's agent, and is on his way to engage an opera troupe for the first season of the Metropolitan opera house. He was for many years musical critic of The World newspaper, and has a wide knowledge and acquaintance to help him in his work. He will go first to Milan, and before returning will visit St. Petersburg, Vienna, Paris, London and other European cities.

At a recent meeting of the United States Menhaden oil and guano association held in this city, it was shown that there is $2 460,000 invested in the business of catching menhaden and making fish oil, soap, etc. There are 286 sailing vessels and 72 steamers employed in the fisheries, 2,805 men. Last year there were 454 192,000 fish caught and 1,266,569 gallons of oil made. There were 25,027 tons of crude soap manufactured.

During the year 1882 the labor bureau at Castle Garden found employment for 37,498 immigrants, of whom 29,401 were men and 8,097 women. The wages obtained by the men ranged from $7 to $15 a month and from $1 to $1.50 a day, and by the women from $8 to $10 a month. Of those employed there were: Germans 19,197 men and 1,064 women; Irish, 7,463 men and 1,064 women; Swiss, 791 men and 43 women

William H. Publicbedamned Vanderbilt says that he is not going to have a gorgeous transcontinental circus as announced but that the party will travel on his private parlor car, with two ordinary sleepers, now runing between New York and Albana, attached. No alterations or additions have been made to these cars.

Alexander Ryder, a well-to-do farmer of Atlanticville, was married on Wednesday by the Rev. J. Robinson, of Good Ground, to Miss Eliza Edwards. The groom is in his eightieth year and the bride in her seventy-ninth.

In front of a Dey street plumber's is a half-worn bath tub gaily decorated and placarded, "This is the bath tub that the Princess Louise would not use at Richmond."

A dispatch was received from Bombay Saturday, stating that the report of the day before regarding injury to the East India crops was untrue, and that the cotton was in good condition.

There were registered in the bureau of records 549 births, 223 marriages, and 636 deaths.

During the past week 1,852 immigrants passed through Castle Garden.

DISCUSSING THE TARIFF.

A PROSPECT OF SOMETHING TANGIBLE BEING DONE.

The Senate and the House Still Pressing on in Devious Ways—The Advent of Lobbyists in Favor of the Commission Report—General Walker Resumes the Census Bureau, Etc.

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—The prospects of the tariff legislation at this session have brightened to-day, the house having gone to work on the details of the bill before it. The opposition to the bill is very determined, however. Messrs. Tucker and Carlisle have shown its frauds very clearly, and it will be fought to the last. With the appropriation bills ahead it will require very neat work to get the house and senate together on any tariff bill this session. Lobbyists from the east are arriving every day to urge the passage of the commission's bill and to portray the awful consequences if this question shall fall in the hands of a democratic house.

AN INCIDENT IN THE SENATE.

During the debate in the senate to-day, Mr. Dawes, replying to Mr. Beck, said: Whenever the senator from Kentucky saw an opportunity to offer a premium to labor abroad, he was always in favor of doing it.

—Mr. Beck I rise simply to contradict flatly the senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. Dawes said it was vain to attempt to convince him of it, but that he was so engaged was plain to everybody. He knew that Mr. Beck did not intend to work in the interest of men abroad, but every man engaged in the manufacturing abroad was in his interest, and took the liveliest interest in all he did.

Mr. Beck replied that he again repeated that it was litterly and absolutely untrue so far as his action was concerned.

Mr. Dawes—I do not impute to the senator any intention to serve these people abroad, but somehow or other they are highly interested in all his efforts, and they agree with me as to the effect of his actions.

Mr. Beck—The senator from Massachusetts cannot get out of the suggestion that I am a knave by saying that I am a fool, and that everybody but me knows that fact. I denounce that statement also as untrue. I am acting as I understand it, in the interest of the great body of the American people, and in accordance with the views expressed by the tariff commission in their report, though not embodied in their bill, in favor of a reasonable reduction of taxation. I claim to be as patriotic, to be as honest in my convictions, and to maintain my views as intelligently as the senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. Dawes—The senator from Kentucky seems to be unusually, as well as unduly, angry. I have endeavored to do justice to his integrity and his intentions, and also, to show his mistake, but the senator says he will not be justified as to his purposes.

GENERAL WALKER AND THE CENSUS.

General Walker resumed charge of the census bureau this morning and says he will remain till the tangle is straightened. He does not think the work is as badly mixed as has been reported. Much complaint has recently been made by southern senators and representatives that the figures representing the material resources and manufacturing enterprises of their section are grossly incorrect, and have caused not a little damage to the interests of the south in the pending tariff discussion. Mr. A. N. Wilson, of Savannah, is reported to be looking out for a place on the civil service commission. Applications are coming in from all parts of the country. Local colored politicians and delegations from South Carolina are pressing the claims of ex-Congressman Rainey.

SCRAP IRON IN THE SENATE.

The Pig Men Standing Out for the Monopolists—Dispute Over Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—In the senate Mr. Vance introduced a bill to remove the statutory limitation upon the state of North Carolina in relation to a claim against the United States for taxes assessed and collected out of the state, and to give the court of claims jurisdiction to hear and determine the same At 11:30 the senate went into executive session. At 12:05 the doors reopened. The tariff bill was taken up. The pending question was on the motion by Mr. Saulsbury to except iron or steel wire for fencing purposes, galvanized or coated with any metal compound laid from extra duty of one-half cent per pound, and upon all other galvanized or coated articles of iron or steel, except tin plates, terne plates and taggers tin. Pending the vote on this question Mr. Sherman offered an amendment, which was ordered printed, proposing a substitute for the paragraph in the bill embracing pig iron, etc., the following: "Iron in pigs, iron in kettledge, spiezeleizen, and cast scrap iron, three tenths of one cent per pound, and wrought scrap iron, or scrap steel, 8 dollars per ton, but nothing shall be deemed scrap iron or scrap steel except waste or refuse iron or steel that has been in actual use and is fit only to be re-manufactured." After a long discussion the provision for an extra duty on iron and steel articles manufactured from them, when galvanized or coated with any metal, was amended so as not to apply to pointed articles or to wire, and the extra rates applicable to other articles was reduced from one half to one quarter of a cent per pound. On motion of Mr. Allison the rate on steel, not specially enumerated, was changed from 3 cents per pound to thirty per cent advalorem. On motion of Mr. Platt, the duty on nickel in the ore or other crude form was reduced from 20 cents per pound to 15 cents. The same reduction was made as to nickel oxide or alloy of any kind in which nickel is the ingredient of chief value, and "ingots, sheets, or other forms of iron or other metal covered or plated with nickel, and ware made of metal so covered or plated," were struck from the paragraph. On motion of Mr. Dawes, the duty on sheeting, or yellow metal not wholly of copper, nor wholly, nor in part of iron, ungalvanized in sheets, 48 by 14 inches. and weighing from 14 to 34 ounces per square foot, was fixed at 35 per cent ad valorem. Mr. Platt moved an additional clause providing for a duty of 35 per cent ad valorem on all sporting breech-loading shot guns, and 10 per cent ad valorem on forged shot gun barrels rough bored. Agreed to, 22 to 19. Mr. Beck moved to fix the duty on metallic pens, penholders, and pen tips, 40 per cent ad valorem. Agreed to, 22 to 20.

CLAIMING EXEMPTION FOR COTTON MACHINERY.

Mr. Bayard moved to reduce the duty on manufactured articles or wares not specially enumerated, from forty-five to thirty per cent advalorem. Mr. Sherman moved to make it 35. Mr. Bayard accepted the amendment, and it was agreed to. Mr. George offered an amendment providing for a duty of 10 per cent advalorem on machinery for the manufacture of cloth or thread composed in whole or in part of cotton, hemp, jute and ramie, and all tools of mechanics used solely in manual labor. Mr. George said he desired to make some remarks on this amendment, and as it was 9 p. m., the hour agreed upon for adjournment, he moved to adjourn. Mr. Edmunds called for the ayes and nays, and the motion to adjourn was lost—ayes 18, nays 25. Motions to go into executive session and to adjourn were lost. Messrs. Beck and Mackey complained of the breach of the understanding that the senate would adjourn at 9 o'clock. Mr. Morrill said several senators having understood that the day's session was not to extend 9 o'clock, beyond he would now move to adjourn, so at 9:30 the senate adjourned.

THE MARIETTA POSTOFFICE.

Among the nominations sent te the senate, were Nathaniel Atkinson, to be postmaster at Asheville, N. C.; Augustine A. Fletcher, at Marietta, Ga.; Henry P. Phillippi, Columbus, Texas. The senate confirmed the following nominations: William Ledwith, postmaster at Jacksonville, Fla.; Benjamin C. Harter, Ocala, Fla.

FROM JOBBERY TO WHISKY.

The Tariff Debate in the House Brings up a Liquor Debate.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—In the house Mr. Blanchard, of Louisiana, presented the memorial of the cotton exchange of Shreveport, Louisiana, protesting against any increase of duty on cotton. Mr. Thompson, of Iowa, from the committee on elections, submitted a report in Mississippi contested election case of Buchanan vs. Manning, declaring neither contestant nor contestee entitled to the seat. Mr. Calkins submitted the views of the minority, granting the contestant leave to withdraw his papers without prejudice. Both reports were laid over and ordered printed. The house at 12:10 went into committee of the whole, Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, in the chair, on the tariff bill. The first amendment offered to the bill was one by Mr. Hewitt, of Alabama, to strike out the section which gives the president power to declare in operation the section prohibiting the importation of neat cattle. Lost 64 to 101. On motion of Mr. Reed, of Maine, a section was so amended as to provide that the president may declare the prohibition provision in operation "during his pleasure." Mr. Beach, of New York, moved to amend the section which provides that no watches, watch cases, watch movements, or parts of which movements which shall copy or simulate name or trade-mark of any domestic manufacture, shall be admitted to entry at United States custom houses, unless the domestic manufacturer is the importer of the same, by extending its provisions to all other articles. Agreed to. Mr. Haskell, of Kansas moved to strike out the words "of all cases" of doubtful as to the classification for duty of imported articles, such article shall be classified at the highest rate of duty" Agreed to. This provision was put in the bill through a clerical error. On motion of Mr. Morrison of Illinois, the clause repealing sections 2,907 and 2,908 revised statutes was inserted in this part of the bill, instead of in the concluding section, as proposed by the committee. These are the sections for duties on commission and charges.

A WHISKY RUSE.

Mr. White, of Kentucky, offered an amendment providing that upon the re-importation of articles once the growth, the product or the manufacture of the United States on which no internal tax has been assessed or paid, there shall be levied, collected and paid a duty double (instead of equal, as provided by the bill) to the tax imposed by the internal revenue laws upon such articles. He said that the provision of the bill was an attempt which went far to convince him of the truth of the statement made on the floor last year, that there seemed to be an understanding between some special tariff men and some special whisky men, which was doing no benefit to this country and good deal less to the republican party. He challenged a denial of his assertion that it was an attempt to do by indirection what could not be done in a straightforward way. The bonded extension bill has been slipped through the house in a method which was infamous. Then the discussion branched off from the question of the tariff, and was addressed to the question of the whisky tax. Mr. White's amendment was lost, 130 to 136, and consideration of this paragraph was passed from. Mr. Cox, of New York, offered an amendment for the importation of ships under a duty of twenty per cent ad valorem, pending which the committee rose, and the house then at 5:20 p.m., adjourned.

THE NEGRO ON THE JURY.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—A decision was rendered by the supreme court of the United States to-day in the case of John Bush, plaintiff in error, vs. the commonwealth of Kentucky, which arose out of the indictment of a colored man for the murder of a white child. Counsel for the prisoner in the circuit court of Fayette county, moved to quash the indictment for the reason that the grand jury which found it was selected by virtue of a state law, from the white citizen of the county exclusively, in violation of the 14th amendment of the federal constitution. The motion to quash was overruled, and the ruling was sustained in the state court of appeals. This court, however, reverses the judgment of the latter, and holds that the motion to quash should be engranted for the reason that the state had twice enacted laws inconsistent with the 14th amendment, and it must be presumed that the officers to whom was committed the selection of the jury in this case acted in conformity with these unconstitutional state laws, in discriminating against colored persons. Opinion by Justice Harlan. Justices Field, Gray, and chief justice dissenting.

The court also decided the miscegenation case of Toney Pace against the state of Alabama, which was a criminal proceeding under the state law, against the colored man for living in sexual relations with the white women. The court holds that the law of Alabama prohibiting miscegenation is not in conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the constitution, or with civil rights legislation founded on it. for the reason that it applies the same punishment to both offenders, white and black without discrimination.

WALKER AND THE CENSUS.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—General Francis A. Walker, who has been called to Washington to take charge of the census, says the work is not in such a confused and unsatisfactory shape as represented. All the reports which have not already been printed are in a fair way to completion, and he thinks he can finish the work during the present calendar year with very few exceptions at a cost of $200,000 more. By the middle of May all but two or three of the reports will have gone to the printer. The expense of this census, he says, will be about 9½ cents per head of the population as compared with 9 cents in the ninth census. The difference of one-half cent per head represents more than double the work done in the preceding census by reason both of expansion of topics and of the broadening of the scope of the inquiry.

SMALL-POX IN CHATTANOOGA.

Renewed Violence of the Disease—Bitten by a Rabid Dog.

Special to the Constitution.

CHATTANOOGA, January 29.—It was thought last week that the small-pox had about disappeared from this city, as several days passed without a new case. On Sunday, however, four cases developed, and to-day two more. A Cleveland, Tenn., special reports eight well developed cases there, and one case appeared at Harrison, and one case appeared at Birchwood. Rev. R. T. Hambright, living on the Ringgold road, six miles from Ooltawah, is reported down with the disease. John Hanson, living on the Ooltawah road, a few miles from this city, while crossing a field near his house yesterday, was attacked by a furious dog, supposed to have been rabid. Mr. Hanson's right hand and arm were fearfully mangled by the brute and fears are entertained of hydrophobia.

A NEW CABINET.

WITH AN UNKNOWN FRENCHMAN FOR PREMIER.

President Grevy Declares that only a Dissolution and an Appeal to the Country Can Mend Matters—The Russo-Austro-German Diplomatic Buzzing—Egyptians in the Soudan.

PARIS, January 29.—The ministers met at the Elysee Sunday morning and tendered their resignations, which President Grevy has accepted. M. DeRoulede, founder of the patriotic league, who has just recovered from a wound received in a duel, was to-day again wounded in a duel with a journalist, arising from a newspaper article. President Grevy has summoned MM. Follieres and Jules Ferry for the purpose of conferring with them in regard to the formation of a new ministry.

M. Jules Ferry declined to undertake the formation of a cabinet. It has been decided, therefore, to revert to a combination ministry under the presidency of M. Follieres, all the late ministers, except M. Duclerc, General Billot and Admiral Jaureguibery, retaining their portfolios. M. Tierard will be minister of foreign affairs; M. D. E. Mahy minister of marine ad interim, and M. Thibaudin minister of war. The Times correspondent says: The result of the situation is tolerably clear, namely, an early dissolution of the chamber. In a conversation for which the correspondent vouches, President Grevy remarked, "I am firmly resolved on dissolution. Nobody can govern the country with the present chamber of deputies." A Paris dispatch to the Exchange telegraph company says: The reconstructed ministry appeared in the chamber of deputies to-day. The debate on the proscription bill has commenced.

STATEMENT BY THE NEW PREMIER.

Special to The Constitution.

In the chamber of deputies to-day M. Follieres explained the divergence of views which led to the resignation of the late ministry. He said though the new ministry is not completely formed it placed itself at the disposal of the chamber as the interests of the country required that the question raised shall be promptly settled. M.M. Cassagnac and De Lamotte proposed an adjournment of the debate until after the appointment of the minister of war, whose department was specially concerned. M. Follieres replied that the bill before the chamber was not a military but a political measure. The chamber decided to commence the debate forthwith. At a meeting of the cabinet this morning M. Follieres was appointed president of the council and ad interim minister of foreign affairs. The ministers of war and of marine will be nominated later. The other ministers remain at their posts. Prince Jerome's counsel have addressed to the minister of justice a strong protest against the continued imprisonment of the prince.

THE PARIS PREFECTURE SUPPRESSED.

PARIS, January 29.—At a meeting of the municipal council to-day, the prefect of police was asked for information in regard to the alleged monarchist plots. He declined to reply to the question addressed to him and the council thereupon, by a vote of 30 to 1 passed a law suppressing the prefecture, placing the police force under the supervision of the municipal council.

THE THREE EMPIRES.

LONDON, January 29.—The Austrian newspapers are busily discussing the significance of the visit of M. deGiers, Russian foreign minister, to Vienna. They are mostly inclined to attribute to it considerable importance. They point to the length of his interviews with Count Kalnoky, Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, Prince Henry VII, of Reuss, the German ambassador to Vienna; the arch dukes, the emperor and others, and to the circumstance that at about the same time the Grand Duke Nicholas had an interview with Prince Bismarck at Berlin. The majority of the special dispatches from the continent to the London newspapers state that the prevailing opinion is that whatever was conceded by Count Kalnoky to M. deGiers, was conceded with the full concurrence and approval of Germany. The Nieue Frie Presse, of Vienna, says: In the preparation for M. de Giers's visit to Vienna, the settlement of the various questions was negotiated through the Austrian ambassador at St. Petersburg. According to this account it was agreed that Servia and Montenegro should, for the present, be satisfied. Russia will support Austria at the London conference on the Danubian question, and at Constantinople concerning the question of the junction of the Austrian and Turkish railways. In return Austria will make no objection to the eventual junction of Bulgaria and eastern Roumelia. The same paper hears that M. deGiers's, in his interview with Prince Bismarck at Varzin, touched upon the entry of Russia into the Austro-German alliance, but met with a refusal. While M. DeGiers was at Vienna he had an interview with a priest of the Russian church there, who passes for one of the best informed men regarding the panslavist agitation, and is supposed to have heard his views and not neglected to give him his official views on the agitation with a view of the correction of any illusions that the panslavists may cherish. Not a single journalist succeeded in interviewing M. deGiers while he was in Vienna. Two days before his arrival an imperial messenger from St. Petersburg brought detailed instructions to M. deGiers. The Standard sums up the effect of the visit of M. deGiers to Vienna, the most important point of which is that the porte is granted a respite.

THE CZAR'S ANXIETY.

Special to the Constitution.

LONDON, January 29.—A Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says the czar is making efforts to bring about the former friendly relations between Russia and Germany. The Berlin correspondent of the Morning Post says the visit of M. de Giers to Vienna has resulted in a complete understanding between Russia and Austria, on the leading political questions, and also in the arrangement of the differences regarding the navigation of the Danube. The Emperor William has approved the plan of General Count Von Moltke, chief of staff, for strengthening the fortifications at Kiel.

LONDON, January 29.—According to dispatches from Berlin all the evening papers there question the accuracy of the statement in the Vienna Neue Freie Presse. The conservative journals adhere to the belief that the visit of M. De Giers to Vienna has consolidated the relations between Austria and Russia. The Vossische Zeitung is of the opinion that neither Germany nor Great Britain approves of a junction of Bulgaria and Roumelia as it would strengthen Russia, whereas the latter's weakness is regarded as the best guarantee of peace.

AUSTRIAN METHODS IN HUNGARY.

Special to the Constitution.

A dispatch from Pesth to the Standard says: The unusually long stay of the imperial family in Hungary, the repeated visits of the crown prince there, and the constant use of the Magyar language by the imperial family during their sojourn in Hungary, have been silently effecting a rapprochement between the court and the Magyars, and tend to confirm the suspicion that the government contemplates an eventual extension of the frontiers of the empire in the southeast for the realization of which project Hungary will be the base of operation.

THE FRENCH ANARCHISTS THREATENING.

Special to the Constitution.

A telegram from Lyons reports the town in a state of excitement. It is rumored that the anarchists intend to storm the prison of St. Paul, where Prince Krapotkine is confined. Troops and police have been posted in the neighborhood of the prison and other precautions have been taken to prevent the anarchists from carrying out such design.

THE SITUATION IN LONDON.

Special to The Constitution

CAIRO, January 29.—A dispatch received here from Colonel Stewart shows the falsity of the recent alarmist rumors relative to the state of affairs in the Soudan. Colonel Hicks and other British officers selected for service in Soudan will leave Suez for that country on Wednesday next, and until their arrival the Egyptian general will not undertake any military operations beyond concentrating his troops at Khartoum.

BISMARCK'S NAME ATTACHED.

Special to The Constitution.

LONDON, January 29.—The North German Gazette points that the Emperor William's recent letter to the paper was countersigned by Prince Bismarck, thus proving that the letter was not simply a compromise, but a document of political importance.

TWENTY-SIX PERSONS LOST.

Special to The Constitution.

LONDON, January 29.—A vessel supposed to be the steamer Back Watch, was sunk to-day off Mumbleshead. 26 persons were drowned.

A FRIENDLY WARNING.

Special to The Constitution.

A placard was posted a few days ago in the garden at St. Petersburg enjoining the people to avoid places frequented by the court lest they should be hurt by any thing that might happen.

IRISH CONSPIRATORS.

Special to The Constitution.

LONDON, January 29.—The Times says it believes the government is in possession of information which will bring home guilt or complicity in the Phoenix park murders, to at least two of the prisoners who were before the magistrates on Saturday. The Times continues: There can be no doubt the government has found the clue. The crisis of the struggle is over, and leaves the government on the winning side.

ACROSS THE PACIFIC.

Developments in China, Japan and on the Tonquin Question.

Special to The Constitution.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 29.—The steamship, Coptic, from Hong Kong and Yokohoma, brings the following: Hong Kong, January 4.—The attitude of China towards Japan is becoming unpleasant, if not actually hostile on the Loo Choo question. Affairs in Tonquin are still in an uncertain state. The French envoy to Pekin believes the Chinese will be immediately withdrawn and leave the way open for the French possession. Yokohoma, January 29.—Admiral Ito, president of the new shipping company; Captain A. R. Brown, adviser, and R. W. Irvin, business manager, will start soon for America and Europe to make a large purchase of steamships and other materials.

A FLOATING COFFIN.

A Body Buried For 20 Years Found Floating Down the Mississippi.

Special to the Constitution.

VICKSBURG, January 29.—Early this morning a metal coffin was found floating in the river at Delta Point, opposite this city. It contained the body of a young lady handsomely dressed in a white rep silk dress with a rich lace collar around the neck. The dress and collar were as white and perfect as when first buried. The face was much discolored. The coffin was of the old style, in use some twenty years ago, heavily enameled in white. It is thought the body must have been buried fully fifteen or twenty years ago, and to have fallen into the river at Lake Providence, or near Goodrich's Landing, where the cemeteries are caving into the river. The body after being viewed by a number of persons was buried at Delta Point.

The Navy Yard Inspection.

Special to The Constitution.

KEY WEST, Fla., January 29.—Commodore Luce and party, constituting the commision appointed to examine and report upon the navy yards and stations, arrived to-day. He expected to have reached here a week earlier, but was detained by the snows at the north and floods in Florida. A public reception will be tendered him to-morrow by the citizens. Mr. Mallott, originally of the commission, has returned to Jacksonville from Cedar Keys. Chief Engineer Loring and Assistant Engineer Tolcatt, accompanying the commodore and the party are all well.

Another Chance Asked For.

NEW ORLEANS, January 29.—Schlenker & Co., cotton factors, filed proceedings for a respite. They assert that they have always been and still are perfectly solvent, but at the present time are unable to meet their maturing obligations, and desire a respite of one, two and three years, in which to pay heir debts. Their assets are $243,000; liabilities, $204,000. In the case of the City vs. the Carollton railroad company, the supreme court to-day decided that the capital stock of the street railway is liable to taxation.

Witnessing the Desertion.

LONDON, January 29.—The steamer reported yesterday wrecked near Swansea, was the Agnes Jack, bound from Sardinia with lead. Witnesses of the disaster, who were unable to render any assistance, seen the crew, numbering twelve men, swept one by one from the mast. The schooner was out of reach of rockets, and unapproachable by boats. All hands perished, including the captain, who, it is believed, stripped for the purpose of swimming ashore.

Republican Civil Service.

CHICAGO, Ills., January 29.—Noah D. Smith special deputy surveyor of the United States customs of Memphis, Tenn., was arrested here to-day charged with embezzling government funds to the amount of from five to six thousand dollars. Smith says he is but three hundred and sixty-five dollars short in his accounts, and that this sum was not embezzled, but simply overdrawn, and he intends to make it good.

The Senatorial Grist.

DENVER, COL., January 29.—In joint session of the legislature to-day Hon. Thomas M. Bowen was elected United States senator for the term of six years, and Hon. A. W. Tabor for the short term, each receiving the full party vote.

LINCOLN, NEB., January 29.—The 15th ballot was taken for United States senator without result.

Piano Factories on Fire.

NEW YORK, January 29.—A fire broke out in the piano factory of Behr Bros. & Co., Eleventh avenue, early this morning. Loss, $60,000; insurance, $40,000. Hazelbar Bros. piano factory, 34 and 36 University Place, was burned to-day. Most of the stock was destroyed. The damage to the stock, $80,000; insurance, $85,000; damage to the building, $30,000, fully covered by insurance.

One Hundred and Four Days Out.

PHILADELPHIA, January 29.—The schooner Henry S. Williams, Captain John P. Wilson, of May's Landing, N. J., bound from Jacksonville, Fla., for this port with a cargo of lumber, is 104 days out and it is believed that she was lost with all on board during the heavy weather of October 30, last.

A Million Dollar Hoax.

ST. LOUIS, January 29.—The associated press item announcing that Father McCarty had been bequeathed $1,000,000 which he had decided to give towards the liquidation of the Cincinnati debt, is ascertained to be a hoax.

Acquitted of Murder.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., January 29.—In the circuit court to-day Joe and Ben Erichberger, father and son, were acquitted of the charge of murdering Aug. Budke, October 30th, 1881.

DR. HAPE'S ESCAPADE.

A PROMINENT AUGUSTA FIRM MAKES AN ASSIGNMENT.

Drowned in Columbus—Rome Coal—Particulars of the Forsyth Fire—Died from His Wound—A Nearly Fatal Accident—A Moonshiner Caught—The Last of Fluming, Etc., Etc.

Special to the Constitution.

TALLULAH, Ga., Sunday night, 10 o'clock, January 28.—To-day at 9 o'clock Dr. Albert Hape and Mr. C. L. Quimby, of New York left Tallulah hotel for the purpose of exploring various hitherto unexplored points of Tallulah falls. At Oceana falls the doctor's friend, Mr. Q., declined to proceed further on so perilous a mission, but Dr. H., undaunted, proceeded, with the understanding that he would join his friend, Mr. Q., at a point near the "grand chasm." Dr. H. failed to meet Mr. Q., and the fears of the latter were aroused as to the explorer's safety. At 4 o'clock search was begun but without avail. Later a search was begun which ended without success. Tracks of the doctor were seen at the bridge of Tallulah river where the water is 30 feet deep and it is feared that he has been either drowned or if successful in crossing the river has attempted an ascension of some of the heights and has fallen and been killed. A year or more ago Dr. H. ascended the Grand chasm most a daring feat, which was never performed or attempted before or since.

The caverns in and around the fall are inhabited with wild cats and it is predicted that whether dead or alive his body will be devoured by those ferocious animals before morning.

LATER.

Since writing my communication from this point, a messenger reports that Dr. H. has been found, seated on a rock immediately below the "devil's pulpit," 300 feet from the earth's surface and 150 feet above the river bed. He can neither proceed nor recede from his position. Down there it is as dark as Erebus, and a look down in the dark at the doctor's light, which consists of pine burning on a rock, reminds the spectator of the darkness attributed to "hades." Late last night that prince of brave good fellows, Captain Luke Johnson, accompanied by Messrs. Grierson, Dean, Johnson, Yoyst and Martin, the last mentioned of whom found Dr. H., descended to a point in rear of the explorer and attempted to extricate him from his unenviable position, but their efforts proved futile. To-morrow morning early the effort will be repeated and we hope will succeed. Dr. H. is a lover of adventure and to this fondness is attributedhis present perilous position. Illustrative of his nerve, coupled with his daring and inate love of adventure, a few years ago in Atlanta he made a balloon ascension when the constructor of the balloon and a most successful professional aeranout, was deterred from the dangerous venture.

This (Monday) morning at day break Dr. H. dropped a note to friends saying, "I'm all O. K.' Send a 300 foot rope."

ANOTHER ACCONT.

Dr. Hape, of Dahlonega, in exploring Tallulah Falls, was lost and found at a point where he could not get out. He has been in the chasm since Sunday, but they hope to get him out with the use of ropes. He remained on Sunday night clinging to a precipice below devil's pulpit, three hundred feet from the surface, and one hundred and fifty feet from the river. This morning at daybreak he dropped a note which read: "Get ropes three hundred feet long. Am all O. K." He had not been rescued when the train left. Hape is the man who made the ascention in Atlanta and the balloon bursted.

BROWN ON THE TARIFF.

He Thinks One Party is too Cautious and the Other is Afraid.

Special to the Constitution.

SAVANNAH, Ga., January 29.—Senator Brown was in the city yesterday. He was called on by a number of persons. In an interview with a representative of the Savannah Daily Times, concerning the tariff, he said: "While there is not the slightest doubt that the people of the country, by which I mean, the consumers and dealers, want the war tariff and the blighting agitation about it brought to an end, it is daily growing plainer that congress will not get through with the important subject for some time to come. The republican party does not care to grapple with the issue, and the democratic party does not care to go ahead too fast in the matter. One side seems afraid and the other too cautions." The senator left last night for Atlanta.

A NEGRO STABBED.

Jerry Jones was dangerously stabbed in the neck by Mrs. Lena Houston, with a large fork. The parties are colored. The electric tower was completed to-night. The highest structure in the city will be lighted up tomorrow night. The sanitary commissioners this morning decided on an investigation of the premises of the Pavillion hotel in conse quence of several cases of typhoid sickness lately. Dr. C. C. Schley was injured by being thrown from a buggy while the horse was running away. The driver's head was cut. The horse fell, badly brussed, and the buggy was demolished. The railroads have decided to sell excursion tickets to the sesqui, commencing on the 10th instead of the 11th.

DEATH ON A TRAIN.

This afternoon on the arrival of the fast train from Jacksonville, a passenger died in the Pullman car. He was very feeble when he got on at Jacksonville in the morning. He was named William McManard. He was on his way home to Richmond, Va. He was a consumptive. His father was with him, and will carry the remains to-morrow. He was aged 30.

THE FORSYTH FIRE.

Particulars of the Losses Sustained Last Saturday—The Insurance.

Special to The Constitution.

FORSYTH, January 29.—The followlowing are the particulars of the disastrous fire of Saturday night reported by telegraph in your Sunday's paper. The losses on buildings and stocks are about $25,000, the fire having been stopped and several buildings which were saved thought to be beyond hope when the loss of $65.000 was wired you: James D. Proctor, stock of dry goods $10,000: James D. Proctor, store building, $3,000; W. A. Pye, stock of groceries, $6,000; J. M. Ponder, store and Masonic hall, $4,000; E. R. Roberts, store, $2,000; Roberts & Sanders stock of groceries, partial, $1,000 estimated; T. D. Smith, dry goods, damaged by removal, $1,000 estimated. All the sufferers were well insured and their losses will be comparatively small.

The insurance is about $20,000, divided among Southern Mutual, $6,000; Georgia Home, $3,000; New York Home, $1,500; New York Underwriters, $1,800, and the balance about equally between other northern and foreign companies. The origin of the fire is a mystery, as it could not be found save by the dense volumes of black smoke issuing from doors and windows, until the whole building burst into a sheet of flame. The engine was not available, as not a spark of light could be seen until the whole interior of the large two story building was on fire.

RESPECT TO WARREN MAYES.

Assignment of Robert H. May & Co.—Progress of the Elberton Road—Burglars Making Raids.

Special to The Constitution.

AUGUSTA, January 29.—Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late S. Warren Mays were adopted in the superior court this morning. Appropriate addresses were made by several members of the bar, also by Judge Raney. Burglars and thieves are making almost nightly raids. The city seems to be infested with them. Work on the Augusta, Elberton and Chicago railroad will soon begin. The officers of the road have no doubt about its success. About one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars are already subscribed.

TWO ASSIGNMENTS.

AUGUSTA, January 29.—Robert H. May & Co., carriages, harness and leather, have made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. The assets valued at $41,000 and notes and accounts $62,000. Liabilities secured and unsecured are $82,000, with a possible liability of $25,000 through indorsements. The National bank of Hartford and two other local banks are secured by mortgage for $34,000. There is another mortgage for $15,000 to secure other local banks and creditors. Heavy losses and dullness in trade caused the failure. The house has been in existence forty years.

Myer Myers, of Elbertson, Ga., general store, made an assignment. Liabilities, $22,000; nominal assets, $23,000.

DROWNED IN THE CHATTAHOOCHEE.

Columbus Art Exposition—A Murder Case in Court—A Lady's Death.

Special to The Constitution.

COLUMBUS, January 29.—This evening Westley Price, a fourteen year old son of Phillip Price, a factory operative, while engaged in catching drift wood on the bank of the river, near the gas works, fell in and was drowned. The body has not been recovered. Miss Carrie Rundell, an estimable young lady clerk in the variety store, died this morning of typhoid pneumonia. The remains have been carried to Auburn, Ala., her former home, for interment. The case of George Layfield, charged with the murder of Conrad Link several years ago, is set apart for tomorrow. The grand International Art exposition for the benefit of the Public library, opens to-night and promises to be a grand affair.

COLD WATER IN ROME.

Prospecting the Coal Fields—Shad in the Etowah—A Temperance Meeting.

Special to The Constitution.

ROME, January 29.—A large and enthusiastic temperance meeting was held in the Methodist church on Sunday night. Addresses were made by Revs. Messrs. Anderson and Nunnally. A powerful effort will be made to have the council pass an ordinance closing the saloons at sundown. The coal vein recently discovered within six miles of Rome will be thoroughly tested within the next thirty days by a capitalist who took an option on it. Everybody hopes that coal will be found in paying quantities

NATIVE WHITE SHAD IN THE ETOWAH.

White shad are being taken from traps on the Etowah river. This river was stocked eight years ago and again two years ago.

MERCER VERSUS EMORY.

Special to The Constitution.

MACON, January 29.—A month or so ago, the literary societies of Mercer university elected debaters to meet the Athens representatives in an inter-collegiate debate to come off during the coming summer, being sure that Athens would challenge them. Athens having declined to challenge them, a second election was held Saturday, and the following named gentlemen who had been elected to go to Athens, were unanimously elected to meet Emory in debate at the close of the present term. They are Messrs. W. H. Williams, of Griffin, Hewlette A. Hall, of Newnan, and Alba Perdue, of Senoia.

Fifty-five students were present at the election, and not one of the gentlemen elected received a dissenting vote. This second election of these gentlemen is a high tribute to their talents as debaters.

A NEARLY FATAL ACCIDENT.

Special to The Consitution.

CEDARTOWN, January 29.—An accidental self-poisoning has just occurred at the "Cedartown hotel," which came near terminating fatally. The victim was Mr. Chalfant, of Missouri, who has for several weeks been stopping at the above house. Mr. Chalfant took a heavy draught of water from a tumbler in his room in which had been cerelessly left a compound of morphine and strychnine, and something else, and the preservation of his life is due the assiduous efforts of three of our prominent physicians, assisted by the guests of the house.

A MOONSHINER ARRESTED.

Special to The Constitution.

DAHLONEGA, January 25.—Jas. Singifelt, an illicit distiller and continual violator of the revenue laws, in the western part of the county, was captured the other night by Deputy Marshal Robinson, of this place.

The last of the fluming in the Bast ditch, fourteen miles long, is being put up, and the water will be at the Ivey mine in a short time. This water comes fourteen miles, from Cane creek.

BURIAL OF MRS. YANCEY.

Special to The Constitution.

ATHENS, January 29.—Mrs. Yancey's remains have been carried to Alabama to the buried beside her husband. The Georgia extension will be finished this week. Colonel C. G. Talmadge has been appointed assistant marshal at the sesqui centennial. Mrs. W. H. Dorsey died on Sunday.

DIED FROM HIS WOUND.

Special to The Constitution

TILTON, January 29.—J. D. Nance, who was accidentally shot while out hunting near Tilton, on Friday, a week ago, died on Saturday night as a result of exhaustion consequent upon an ampu ation of his arm.

A Dahlonega Well.

From the Mountain Signal.

We were met on Monday last, by a man who was carrying a pick. On questioning him, we found that he was on his way to Captain R. F. Williams's, where he claimed to be engaged in sinking a well, which had previously been sunk to the depth of 80 feet. The story he told was a strange one, but from his positive manner, and at the same time referring to Mr. R. F. Williams, Jr., as to the truth of the matter, there is no doubt but that his statement is true. He said: "Some two years ago, Mr. Williams dug the well which I am at work in, and struck a good stream of water. During the dry season it affords plenty of water, but in wet weather during the winter season, it always gets lower, and in very wet weather, dries entirely up." He said that this strange well went entirely dry during the recent 8 days' rain. If there is any one who has ever seen anything of the kind, we should like to hear from them, and if any one can explain why it is that any stream of water should be flush in dry weather and cease to flow during the wet season, we would be pleased to hear from them.

What an Old Indian Field Can Do.

From the Americus, Ga., Recorder.

Mr. Vinson Pilcher, one of Schley's oldest and one among her best farmers, recently purchased land in that county that had once belonged to his father, fifty years ago. On that land is an old Indian field, that was considered an old field fifty years ago, but last year Mr. L. M. Battle made on a portion of it one hundred and seventy-five bushels of corn, ten bales of cotton, one barrel of syrup, besides ground peas, and potatoes enough to fatten for him hogs that weighed, when killed, 1,500 pounds, and all this the work of one plow. Land in this section is not exhaustable, and with proper management will enrich the tiller.

The Quail Fever in Clarke.

From the Athens, Ga., Banner.

The young men of Monroe offer to bet any reasonable sum that Mr. Cicero Edwards, of that town, will eat sixty partridges in thirty days. He has been often known to eat sixty eggs at one time, and also to eat, during one night, six grown hens, a fourteen pound ham and a bushel of biscuit. If this be the case, we would hate to bet against Edwards not getting away with sixty grindstones in thirty days.

GEORGIA GOSSIP.

SHORT TALKS WITH THE SCRIBES OF THE COUNTY PRESS.

The Homestead Law Discussed—Heavy Cotton Bales—Savannah Exports and Receipts—Stray Girls in Opelika—A Champion Bird Shooter—Marriage at Rough-Edge—Huge Alligator.

The Hartwell Sun rises up to discuss the homestead laws of Georgia. It declares that through "its provisions all confidence between seller and buyer is well nigh destroyed. The homestead law is contrary to the spirit of the constitution. As an incident to the rights of private property the obligations of contracts and agreements, both public and private, are made sacred, and required to be held inviolate. Whether the homestead law is unconstitutional or not, it certainly is not founded upon the principles of justice. The creditor should not be held responsible for the extravagance or misfortune of the debtor. If the collecting laws of Georgia were what they ought to be a poor man's credit would be as good as a rich man's. The way it is now the poor man stands no chance to recover from bad luck or misfortune, and he can have no inducement to build up after once getting "under the weather." Before the war a poor man's note passed in trade almost like a bank bill. Not long since we knew a man to deed his land with the privilege of redeeming it for the pitiful sum of seven dollars. If collection laws had been good, he could have borrowed the seven dollars from a neighbor by giving his due bill. If there ever was a time when the homestead was a real necessity, that time has passed, and the pernicious law should be abrogated."

Henry County News: We are under obligations to Mr. W. C. Sloan for several files of old papers, dating as far back as 1846, and containing much good reading anent the 'stirring times" of that period in American politics.

Americus Recorder: Captain C. W. Felder has in his warehouse four bales of cotton weighing 1,999 pounds. The peculiarity of the number nine was noticed in this weight. Add the three nines and we have twenty-seven, then add the two and seven and it results back to an original figure of the weight, the number nine.

Forsyth county has a farmer, Mr. John B. Gravitt, who has made ten thousand dollars clear during the past fifteen years, out of the soil, besides the improvement of his place.

The Washington Gazette is appreciative enough to say: "Mr. Robert Hemphill, of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, is in town. in the interest of that paper. The ability, enterprise and immensity of THE CONSTITUTION makes it all that could be desired in a daily paper, and the people who live in easy access of it are to be congratulated. The people of a large portion of the south, receive it the day it is printed, and it shows their high sense of the fitness of things to see them appreciate it so greatly."

Hawkinsville News: Messrs. W. H. Dickey and E. J. Barclay, of Wilcox, while fishing a net the other morning, encountered a huge alligator, which they safely landed alive. His gatorship measured 7 feet 8 inches, and was the wonder of the neighborhood.

The Griffin News records a mystery which is agitating that city. Great crowds of persons have visited the yard of the Troup house within the past day to examine the mysterious new made grave which was filled during the night. The coroner was duly notified to come and disinter the body, but up to the hour of going to press the grave remains undisturbed. What strange freak could have induced those unknown grave diggers to inter a human body in a hotel yard, in the dead of night is a mystery to our citizens.

Savannah Recorder: The receipts of cotton at this port last week amounted to 12,567 bales of upland and 348 bales of sea island. against 16,691 bales of the former and 488 bales of the latter for a corresponding period last year. The receipts of naval stores last week were 7,156 barrels of rosin and 411 casks of spirits of turpentine. The shipment of cotton for the same period amounted to 26 842 bales upland and 1.250 bales sea island, while the naval stores exported were 7,156 barrels of rosin and 411 casks of spirits of turpentine.

The recent verdict of a Roman jury, in the case of Cothran vs. Brower, gives Mrs. Cothran the 232 shares of the East Rome Town company stock and this is estimated to be worth not less than $25,000.

The Atlanta procuress who was recently detected in her nefarious work in Athens, is still in that city. The girl she tried to carry off was only fourteen years old, and has heretofore bore a good character. Her uncle was employed on Mr. Cicero Chandler's place. He carried his neice back home behind him on a mule. She protested her innocence and said she meant no harm.

Athens Banner: A move is now on foot among the working men of our city to build a small factory for making yarns from cotton. Stock has been placed at $25 per share, and there will be no trouble in finding takers.

There is an old negro living across the river, named "Dog Sam," who makes a good living hunting and fishing. A few nights since he went out and captured eighteen opossums, for which he found ready sale at fifty cents each.

Tunnel Hill has quarantined against Chattanooga.

Coffee County Gazette: Mr. John Brown and Miss Balinda Henderson, of this county, were married at the residence of the bride's father last Sunday. This wedding has been getting ripe for some time, and we were not surprised. John is so happy now that he won't loan us a quarter on 30 days' time.

Building is active in Pearson, Coffee county.

Rockdale county issued last year ninety-seven marriage licenses.

Columbus Times: There was a marriage at Rough Edge, in Talbot county, recently, and it contained a scene seldom equalled even on the stage. The parties were Mr. Jeff Whitley and Miss Culliver. They were married in the woods, and after the ceremony had been performed, the bride's father came on the ground, railing and cursing at the top of his voice, and attempted to beat the newly married couple with a large stick, and would have done so had it not been that one of the by-standers drew a pistol and threatened the irate old man's life.

Sumter Republican: Tom Brady, a colored man, on Wednesday, 24th, split 500 rails by 2:30 p. m. He cut the wood the evening before, except two cuts.

Columbus Times: Opelika was on Friday and Friday night subject to a sensation more startling, if possible, than the recent series of municipal disorders. Instead of being the work of angry men this time it was all caused by two fair young girls who must have been inspired by Dunbar's daring to have even attempted such a thing. Friday morning Misses Clara and Mary Ross, daughters of Mr. William Ross, according to a constitutional custom, left their home to take a walk. After getting some little distance from home, it occurred to them that if they could get up a little sensation it would "just be too delightful for anything." Several hours passed, and the mother at home became a little uneasy at the prolonged absence of her daughters, but gave no alarm as she supposed that they were visiting some friends. In the evening, however, she became uneasy of suspense and had inquiry made all over town, among her friends but to no avail. "Night's deep darkness" covered the earth with its sombreness and the mother's suspense grew into misery, and from misery into agony. The whole of Opelika was alarmed and the town turned out en masse to search for the missing girls. Bands with blazing torches proceeded to scour the surrounding country. One of the parties got on the trail of the girls, and tracked them several miles. Coming to a muddy place in the road, their track's were seen, and also a man's. Foul play then suggested itself, and the energy of the search increased. The searching continued until 2 a. m yesterday, when the girls were found ten miles from Opelika at the house of a relative.

The Valdosta Times records the adventures of a local sport whose shot is always death to the feathered tribe. Once he was on the Carolina coast hunting rice birds—for game birds they are, and who does not like rice birds on toast?—when he suddenly saw a black cloud rising in the southwest and rapidly approaching. He gazed at it a moment—wondered that it was not accompanied with thunder—and looked around for shelter. He was about to start for a negro cabin a hundred yards distant when he discovered that the approaching blizzard was a most immense flock of rice birds. He held in his hand a fine breech-loading gun and had in his belt 100 round of cartridges. He opened fire. Soon the sun was darkened and the moon gave no light, but he kept up the fire. When the last cartridge was empty it was still dark, and so dark that he could not see his way, so he sat down and smoked out two cigars before the cloud of birds passed over and daylight came again.

Savannah Recorder: Yesterday morning about 8:30 o'clock as Mr. G. A. Gregory, city editor of the Savannah Morning News, went to his room in Mrs. Sutton's boarding house, on Broughton and Montgomery streets, he found his door locked and admission refused to him. He could not understand it, and peering through the keyhole, with a woman's curiosity, he saw a man, a stranger, prowling about. He called in Policeman Coffee, who broke in the door, "locked up the form" and found that it had made a bad "impression" on him as there was too much "lie" about the story of how he came there. The prisoner, whose name was F. P. Boyd, said he came from Emanuel county, but could not satisfactorily account for his visit to Mr. Gregory's room. When searched at the police barracks he had a few "quoins" on him and a "shooting-stick" in the shape of a pistol, so that he will have to answer to the charges of being a suspicious character and carrying concealed weapons.

Americus Recorder: Americus can show as good a record, financially, as any place of its size in the state. She owes no bonded debt and could to-day liquidate every cent of her indebtedness if necessity required her to do so.

Chicken thieves are plentiful in Sumter county. From all parts of the state the returns show that the coop crop is active, with the spring chicken in lively demand.

A mad dog was run down and killed in the streets of Lilcolnton a few days since.

The sheep having borne testimony against the dog, the hog is now brought forward to add weight to the crusade against the worthless cur. The Mitchell county grand jury declares: "It being obvious to us that as the stock of dogs increase just in the same proportion the supply of hogs decrease, and as the latter proves a dear necessity, and the former to a large degree a nuisance, besides being exceedingly detrimental to the wool growing industry of our country, we therefore concur in and indorse the wise recommendation of our able state school commissioner, Dr. Orr, of levying a tax of $1.00 per capita on dogs for educational purposes." The grand jury then gives the following statistics:

We find upon enumeration that the school population between the ages of 6 and 13, are white males 911, white females 971, total whites 1,882 Colored males 1,109, colored females 1,031, total colored 2,159, total whites and colored 4,041. There were in operation during the year 28 white schools and 14 colored schools, with an attendance as follows: White male 548, females 483, total whites 1,031. Colored males 367, females 311, total colored 618. Total whites and colored 649. Average attendance 1,095,-72. Average monthly cost of tuition per scholar $1.38, of this amount paid by the state $1.03½.

Americus Recorder: Mr. W. R. Dorn, of Friendship brought to this city yesterday, cabbages that were raised on his land the past winter. They are large ones—we know, for we have a sample—and he can find a ready market for them. He will soon have several hundred head to dispose of, and has now about 1,000 plants ready to set out. He has tried the experiment of truck farming lately, and is confident that there is lots of money in it.

Butler Herald: Mr. B. D. Hill, another one of Taylor county's best farmers made on his plantation last year, with two mules, 19 bales of cotton, has already sold 375 bushels of corn at 75 cents per bushel, and has 200 bushels more for sale at the same price, besides having an abundance of corn left to supply his own demand the present year. Peas, pumpkins and potatoes in abundance. Mr. Hill also has eight fine hogs which he is confident will weigh him three thousand pounds of pork. He is a gentlemen independent of the corn cribs and smoke houses of the west, and who, by farming upon the poor lands of Taylor, is bound for success.

DOWN IN OGLETHORPE.

Special to the Constitution.

FLAT WOODS OF OGLETHORPE COUNTY, January 25.—The two months of wet and freezing weather have hindered late sowings of wheat terribly, and as these are fine wheat growing lands I find all the best farmers eager to put in all the wheat they can for the next few days One near me who succeeds well often sows a rust proof wheat in early February, and his success is such that I write to urge the present opportunity. Taking fresh and dry lands if stimulated with ammoniated phospates, cotton seed or stable manure. Try several acres at least to the plow and see what a help. If perchance, the rust proof wheat is not accessible, and your wheat should in May show too much rust to mature well, it will pay to cut it down in the milk state for hay, and when cured, or fed to stock as green food it often inspires a failing appetite and makes a valuable tonic. The area sown in oats is much less than last year, but spring oats on good land can be sown till February 20th.

The Paper for the Masses.

From the Greenesboro, Ga., Journal.

We received a pleasant call last Tuesday morning from Mr. R. A. Hemphill, of that sterling paper, THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. Hemphill had but a few moments to spend in our sanctum, but he was with us long enough to report THE CONSTITUTION still booming. Our earliest years in journalistic life were spent under the fostering wings of this excellent paper and we always record with pleasure its popularity. THE CONSTITUTION is a representative paper, managed by representative men, and carries with it a wonderful infleence. It has done more, perhaps, with its corps of brilliant and energetic writers, towards building up the material wealth and developing the latent resources of our state than any paper in Georgia. It is in every respect a paper for the masses, newsy, bright and original. Long may it wave!

Two Dooly Farms.

From the Hawkinsville, Ga., News.

Last year, Mr. John H. Adams, with one mule, made on 22 acres of pineywoods land, 10 bales of cotton, each weighing over 500 pounds; on 13 acres in corn, 300 bushels. He also made 150 gallons of syrup, besides sugar and potatoes. He used as fertilizers Chesapeake and Patapsco guano. The variety of corn planted was the "shoepeg." Mr. J. F. Taylor, from 28 acres of pine land, gathered 14 bales of cotton, and from 12 acres in corn, 165 bushels. He also made 87 gallons of syrup and more potatoes than he could dig. He used less than a hundred pounds of Champion cotton grower per acre.

A Cat Epidemic.

From the Blakely, Ga., News.

Our town is threatened with a cat epidemic. Several parties report that the cats on their places are all dying from an unknown cause. Mr. J. M. Wade has lost four, W. W. Fleming is also minus two of the feline race. There is complaint from several other parties on account of dead cats. It is feared by some that this will be a sad cat-astrophe to our town. We say let the varmints die out as we have had our midnight dreams disturbed by their unearthly howls and screechings very much to the detriment of our religion and Sunday school thoughts.

A Remedy for Chills.

From the Athens, Ga., Watchman.

Colonel A. F. Pope says he has discovered a sure remedy for chills, and it has never failed in a case where he tested it. Take one-third part cream tartar and two-thirds sulphur, mix well, and for a dose take about ten grains three times a day. He has given this remedy to the employes of Powell's Mills, who were nearly all down with the chills, and it completely eradicated the disease. It is simple and certainly worth trying.

True to Her old Master.

From the Waycross, Ga., Herald.

Oscar Carter died at an old colored woman's house near town on Thursday night last. The old woman, we learn, had been the slave of his father, when her young master knew better times and when the poor fellow had no other place to go she ministered to his last wants as best she could in her humble home.

A Scattering of Fingers.

From the Blakely, Ga., News.

Crum Robinson's fingers have gone 'where the woodbine twineth.' Yesterday, little Jimmie Cartledge and Crum were fooling with an ax; Crum placed the two middle fingers of his right hand upon a convenient work bench; Jim let the ax fall across them. our readers may imagine the rest of the scene.

The Friend Abroad.

From the Americus, Ga., Recorder.

The man who never shuts the door is abroad. He can be known by the wart on his left ear and a wart on his nose. He lives up to the principle that misery loves company, and when he leaves a door open to let the cold wind in he chuckles clear down to his toes. Beware of him.

Afraid of Odd Numbers.

From the Oglethorpe, Ga., Echo.

Rev. W. F. Smith tells of a horse he once knew that would always refuse to pull if three persons, no matter of what size or weight, were in the vehicle to which he was hitched, but he never refused to draw two of any size. This is a horse that can count.

A Schley Turnip.

From the Americus, Ga., Recorder.

Hon. T. F. Rainey, of Schley, sent us in, yesterday, two mammoth turnips, one of which measured twenty-five inches in circumference. When it comes to raising vegetables, we will back southwest Georgia against the world.

Daniel O'Connor, an Alderman of Savannah, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters has done me great good in indigestion and general debility."

Oh, My Back!

That's a common expression and has a world of meaning. How much suffering is summed up in it.

The singular thing about it is, that pain in the back is occasioned by so many things. May be caused by kidney disease, liver complaint, consumption, cold, rheumatism, dyspepsia, overwork, nervous debility, &c.

Whatever the cause, don't neglect it. Something is wrong and needs prompt attention. No medicine has yet been discovered that will so quickly and surely cure such diseases as BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and it does this by commencing at the foundation, and making the blood pure and rich.

Logansport, Ind. Dec. 1, 1880.

For a long time I have been a sufferer from stomach and kidney disease. My appetite was very poor and the very small amount I did eat disagreed with me. I was annoyed very much from non-retention of urine. I tried many remedies with no success, until I used Brown's Iron Bitters. Since I used that my stomach does not bother me any. My appetite is simply immense. My kidney trouble is no more, and my general health is such, that I feel like a new man. After the use of Brown's Iron Bitters for one month, I have gained twenty pounds in weight. O. B. SARGENT.

Leading physicians and clergymen use and recommend BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. It has cured others suffering as you are, and it will cure you.

SCARED TO DEATH.

A Lioness in a Circus Breaks Out and Scares an Antelope to Death.

PHILADELPHIA, January 29.—Peter Marvine, an animal trainer, angered a lioness named Juno in a circus's winter headquarters near Philadelphia last evening by petting one of her cubs, and she leaped at him, seizing his arm through the bars, and striking at his head. A lad named Donohue seized an iron bar and tried to make Juno drop Marvine, but only increased her rage. All the animals became wildly excited. Donohue ran out shrieking for help, and a number of men started to go to Marvine's assistance. In the meantime Juno had torn the flesh from Marvine's wrist, struck him several terrible blows on the shoulder, and then allowed him to drop to the ground and crawl away. Just as the rescuers reached the doors they heard the sound of crashing timber. Juno had thrown herself against the bars and broken through. Marvine had reached the rack in which the heavy iron bars used to clean the cages were kept, and, seizing one, boldly advanced on Juno, who was crouching in a corner, and she was soon subdued. After she was caged it was noticed that one of a pair of blauw boks was trembling like a leaf, and tears ran down the frightened animal's face. Two minutes later it was dead. Marvine, though seriously injured, will recover.

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION is published every day, except Monday, and is delivered by carriers in the city, or mailed postage free at $1 per month $2 50 for three months, or $10 a year.

THE CONSTITUTION is for sale on all trains leading out of Atlanta, and at newsstands in the principal southern cities.

THE CONSTITUTION,
Atlanta, Georgia.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 30, 1883

THE signal service bureau indicates for the South Atlantic states to-day, partly cloudy weather, occasional rain, variable winds, stationary or lower temperature, generally higher pressure.

MR. SAM RANDALL and Mr. Emory Speer voted against a continuance of the general debate on the tariff bill until five o'clock to-day. They voted to choke off debate on Saturday, and they had their way.

THE star routers are whining about the cost of their trials. They say they have already expended $200,000. They are beginning to see, doubtless, that it does not pay to induce juries to disagree when the government is the prosecuting party.

THE Atlanta cotton exposition is marching on. The Louisville people are at work getting an exhibition for this year, and Senator Garland, of Arkansas, is at work to secure the aid and recognition of the government for an exposition to be held in 1884. He is pressing his bill, and many cities are expected to compete for the advantages of a national exhibition.

THE republican managers are working to get either the house or the senate bill in the hands of a conference committee by the 20th of next month. If they can do this it is believed there are enough men like Mr. Voorhees in the one house and Mr. Sam. Randall in the other, to pass the bill. A few days will show whether this plan can be carried out or not.

ATLANTA streets are bad enough, but we are free from the subteranean explosions to which New York seems to be subject. It appears from our New York correspondent's dispatch that the city granted the Steam Heating company a very liberal charter and now the whole city suffers. The story is a warning of the necessity to guard rights in the street.

ARCHBISHOP HUGHES, of New York, was the ablest prelate of the Roman Catholic church in this country. He took the churches of New York when five out of eight were about to be sold for debt, cleared them, and started the fund to build the present cathedral which is the most magnificent building in New York. Archbishop Hughes was continually in [illegible] notably with Rev. John Breckinridge, a presbyterian, James Gordon Bennett and Mr. Erastus Brooks.

OUR New York correspondent telegraphs us to-day of the inauguration of a curious enterprise. It is an insurance company started and officered by and for women. With Miss Kate Field's experiment staring them in the face the ladies who will attempt to work a field where competition is very active will be pushed to get along. Why the company should be exclusively for women is hard to see. It is to be hoped that the enterprise will not turn out like Mrs. Howe's Boston bank exclusively for women.

AFTER Michigan, Minnesota and Nebraska shall have settled their senatorial contests, there will remain only the New Hampshire election, which will not take place until June, although Mr. Rollins's term will expire March 3d. The legislature in New Hampshire is elected in November, but does not meet until June, and so no senator of that state can be elected until his term is several months old, because the federal statute says a senator shall be elected by the legislature chosen before the expiration of the term of the present incumbent. In New Hampshire MR. Rollins proposes to be his own successor. The republican majority on joint ballot is ninety-five.

THE STREETS.

The street commissioners have advertised for sixty thousand square yards of granite blocks and sixty-eight thousand five hundred yards of macadam—bids to be handed in by the twenty-eighth day of February, next. It will be seen that it is the purpose of the street commissioners to lay down almost as much of the Belgian blocks as they do of macadam. To put down these blocks we will lose all the old pavement on Marietta, Whitehall, Broad and Decatur streets, and when next winter comes we will be in but little better condition on our main streets than we are now.

It is certainly a mistaken policy to use the money now to put down a fancy pavement on these streets, when we have so much need of our main streets being paved. What good will it be to parties along these streets to have expensive granite blocks take the place of the macadamized streets when two months in the year people can't get into the city? We regret the steps taken by the commissioners. It will involve them in litigation, and make the commission useless to the city. The people will lose confidence in the commission for this useless waste of money.

There is not a citizen in Atlanta, outside of the stockholders in the company that proposes to furnish the granite block, who will say it is wise to throw away the macadam we have, indifferent as it is, until we get our main streets in better order. This proceeding will bring about investigation; it has already done so, and will result in good eventually. We are spending more money every day now for less work on the streets than any city of our size in the world.

One of the stockholders in the Stone Mountain granite company remarked Saturday that it did not make any difference, that the money came out of the property owners and not out of the city treasury, for their granite blocks. This is wrong. If the city spends all the money it has to spare on granite blocks it will have none for macadam. One third of the sum comes out of the city treasury. These blocks are very expensive, and if the city saves this expenditure of one-third for sixty thousand square yards of granite blocks and adds the amount to the square yards of macadam, next winter will find most of our main streets macadamized and in good order.

Some of the best lawyers in the city have been consulted and they give their opinions that there will be no trouble about stopping the commission. The law does not authorize this action on the part of the commissioners, and the fear is expressed by some that it will not stand the test where it ought to, that is, to compel parties to pay for the proper macadamizing in front of their property.

THE COTTON-TIE ROBBERY.

We judge from the coolness and deliberation with which McKinley and his republicans make a statement which they know to be untrue, that the party of corruption will be practically solid when it comes to voting on the proposition to rob the cotton planters of the south by placing an additional tax on cotton ties. The argument which the republican plunderers use to justify their attempt to cripple an industry which is already handicapped by the war taxes it pays upon its tools and its supplies, is that the cotton planter sells his ties for the same price he gets for his cotton.

THE CONSTITUTION has already dealt with this fallacy as it deserve There is not a farmer in the south that Doesn't know it to be untrue; there is not an honest cotton buyer in the smallest town in the south who seeks to hide the fact that the price which he pays for cotton covers a deduction for bags, ties and dirt.

If the tax on ties is to be increased from 35 to 82 per cent, there is no reason why McKinley and his party colleagues should attempt to excuse the robbery with a monstrous lie.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat, discussing this matter, is inclined to rest its opposition to the robbery in the hope that a cotton-tie manufactory may be established somewhere in the neighborhood of New Orleans. If the tax is to be increased, our New Orleans contemporary thinks the best thing the south can do is to establish a cotton-tie manufactory in this section.

"By the establishment of a mill here," says the Times Democrat, "a million dollars and more, which would otherwise go out of the south annually to the Pittsburg and other northern manufacturers of ties, will be kept at home. By such a course, the animus of the bill, directed as it is, against the south, will be defeated, and instead of doing this section harm, it will add to its wealth, and build up within its limits a valuable manufacturing industry."

Does the Times-Democrat mean to say that money taken out of the pockets of the southern cotton planters, under a law conceived in corruption, and placed in a tie manufactory, will add to the wealth of this section? Is it not simply legalized robbery to cripple one industry for the benefit of another and less important industry? What does a southern farmer care whether the money of which he is robbed goes into the pockets of a northern or a southern manufactory? The point with him is the fact that he is the victim of unnecessary and unjustifiable robbery.

This cotton-tie business will serve to show the southern people precisely the nature of the scheme of protection as it is interpreted by congressmen who are either bribed by the monopolists or who are led by their own selfish interests. It is a scheme for robbing the people in the interest of monopolists.

The proposition to rob the southern planters, however, is so outrageous in its nature that we still have hopes that there are enough honest men in congress to defeat it. If not, there will be plenty of honest democrats in the next congress to repeal it.

THE TARIFF BILLS.

Log-rolling of the most shameless nature attends every step of the tariff bills. The lobby now gathered in Washington was never larger nor busier than just at present, and this body of unrecognized legislators is made up of men devoted to special interests, to particular items in the pending tariff bills. Each man serves notice upon the other representative robbery that they must stand by his "infant industry," or else he will turn to and slaughter their infants. The trouble about this business is, the south has no "infants" worth mentioning. The south filled with consumers, is therefore the chief victim of the log-rolling. But let that pass.

The villainy of the tariff bills has been on an increasing scale. The bill of the commission was certainly wicked and insincere enough, for according to Mr. Nemmo, it would increase the revenue if importations continued to be as large as they were last year. "As a general rule," says Mr. Carlisle, after carefully studying the vicious sham, "the proposed reduction of rates related to articles of but little consequence to the people at large, and very frequently the reduced rates were still prohibitory, so that no relief whatever was granted to the consumer. Upon many important articles the rates of duty were largely increased, and in some instances more than doubled."

The senate bill is an attempt to maintain the present tariff essentially unimpaired; but villainous as that bill is, the house bill discounts it altogether. The latter is not a bill at all to reduce the revenue. As Mr. Tucker said, "the idea of a tariff has been perverted from its original purpose until experts had been employed for the purpose not of finding how the revenue could be raised but how revenue could be prevented in the interest of monopolists." And yet so clumsy is the bill that it will probably increase the revenue instead of reduce it. At the outside, Mr. Kelley does not claim that it will effect a reduction exceeding $20,855,700. As about $12,000,000 of this amount is to be taken from sugar, there remains only about $8,000,000 to come from all other articles, or about five per cent! The mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse, even at Mr. Kelley's estimate of its proportions. The truth is, the house bill is a protection bill of the protectionists. Every considerable "infant industry" is cared for in it. The tax on cotton ties is increased from $13.44 to $32.96 a ton; quinine is taken from the free test and taxed 20 per cent; all the woolen goods used by laboring people and their families are taxed from twenty per cent to fifty per cent more, and on cotton stockings, hose, half-hose, shirts and drawers, the duty has been increased from thirty-five per cent to forty-five per cent. Perhaps the meanest thing in this swindling monstrosity relates to the reduction on sugar. As sugar is made in the south, it was decided to make it stand all the material reduction in the bill; but instead of reducing the duty upon sugar fit for consumption, the duties were taken from the low grade of raw sugar, so that every pound of sugar that the people use must pass through the hands of eastern refiners.

The bill is a compound sham and swindle. It would effect no considerable reduction in the revenue. It relieves the people of no burdensome tax on necessaries. It simply provides for bounties in the iron, steel, cotton, woolen goods, glass and earthenware interests, and leaves the entire problem of tariff reform untouched. It is, in a word, a mass of pretense and juggling that deceives nobody who wishes to go undeceived. The southern member who votes for it votes to tax the people he represents in order to maintain a system of bounties the like of which the world never saw.

At a cabinet meeting the other day, Timothy Howe, the postmaster general, proposed the names of Kellogg, of Louisiana; Kitchen, of New York, and O'Neal, of Pennsylvania, as members of the civil service commission. These men are as notorious as Jay Hubbell, and there was great laughter among the members of the cabinet. This laughter was probably premature. Timothy Howe is not a professional humorist, neither is he the real postmaster general. He is a mere figure head, and he probably had his orders from Editor Frank Hatton, his first assistant, to nominate these men. A joke is a joke, but Howe's joke is no joke.

---

MR. SAM R. WATKINS, of Columbia, Tenn., is in the city selling his book "Company Aytch, Maury Grays, First Tennessee Regiment; or, a Side Show to the Big Show." This volume is written from the point of view of a private soldier, and is full of entertaining reminiscences, anecdotes and experiences. Company Aytch was in the Atlanta campaign, and the book is full of interest for Georgians. Price 75 cents.

---

PORTER and Kenner, the tariff commissioners, attribute the publication of their private letters to a young man who was their private secretary, but who was discharged on account of his bad habits. It would appear, however, that the habits of the private secretary could not have been much worse than the intentions of Porter and Kenner.

EDITORIAL AFTERTHOUGHTS.

"A lady subscriber" suggests that the city council pass a resolution requiring every property owner on a residence street to set out trees in front of his property. A 100 foot lot could be fronted with good trees at a cost of $10, and in a few years would add $1,000 to the value of the property. There is no reason why Atlanta should not have every street an avenue of shade trees.

General Toombs says every farmer in the state ought to read the WEEKLY CONSTITUTION. He is so earnest on this subject that he has subscribed for 12 weeklies, to send to farmer friends, as a compliment.

The handsomest ball-invitation of the season come to us from Summerville, in Chattooga county. Mayor Beliah, Recorder Edmondson, and Councilmen Branner, G. D. Hollis, J. R. Clemmons, W. H. Strain and John W. Close were inaugurated last night, and a grand ball was given them. On the committee we notice Hon. Jno. W. Maddox, Captain J. S. Cleghorn and others. The dancing music was furnished by the Patie Birnie string band, and the reception music by the Locksley Hall brass band. Summerville is the best village of the commonwealth, and hard to turn down.

POLITICAL NOTES.

SEVEN members of the United States senate, as it stands at present, are natives of Kentucky.

GENERAL TOOMBS is reported as saying that Henry D. McDaniel will be the next governor of Georgia.

REPRESENTATIVE SPRINGER, of Illinois, says of Senator-elect Cullom: "No, he's not a great man. He'll never set the world on fire, but if it were on fire he'd put it out."

SENATOR WINDOM finds, as the Cincinnati Enquirer says, that several other republican politicians have been in Minnesota long enough to "grow up with the country."

EX SENATOR EATON, of Connecticut, says that the democratic party took out a patent fifteen years ago for being fools, and are now busy engaged in trying to get an extension of time.

SENATOR HILL, of Colorado, is charged with saying that there is more corruption in the department of the interior than there ever was before, and that Secretary Teller is responsible for it.

THE Hennepin canal scheme will have a sealous and able supporter in Cullom, the new senator from Illinois. He says his ambition will be to have the enterprise completed during his service in the senate.

THE Cincinnati Enquirer asks: What does Governor Foster think of Senator Sherman's suggestion that the temperance question should not be considered as a political matter? Of late it has been Foster's only issue, and if he is to be deprived of his he will be bereft indeed.

W. L. MERRY, representing the San Francisco board of trade, has been at Washington to see how the Nicaragua canal scheme gets on. He thinks congress will pass the bill as reported as soon as it gets through fooling; but if it should not do so the company will accept money which rich men in Germany and England are ready to invest, re-organize and dig the ditch.

MR. EDWIN A. MERRITT, consul-general at London, has had an opportunity to study the British civil service at short range, and in his annual report to the state department he explodes the fiction that the service is wholly divorced from politics. The fact is, that the lower grades only, to-wit, those comprising positions commanding less than 400 pounds each per annum, are covered by the rules, while all positions commanding more than that in the home and all in the foreign service continue, as under the old or patronage system, to be filled by the heads of departments or by the crown. So there is an abundance of "spoils" for the British "bosses."

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

GENERAL BEAUREGARD, according to the Philadelphia Press, resembles a courtier of Louis XIV days, and is in reality a handsome old man with white moustache, ruddy countenance and gray hair.

THE majority of the bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church have consented to the consecration of Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, D.D., as assistant bishop of Mississippi. Dr. Thompson will, in all probability accept, and his consecration will take place as soon as the preliminaries can be arranged.

JUDGE JERE BLACK fell a short time ago and fractured his right arm in several places. Being an old man, the physicians say he will probably never recover the use of it. A surprising fact is that he has learned to write with great facility and rapidity with his left hand and still conducts his own correspondence.

BILL NYE, the Boomerang humorist, is a tall, well shaped fellow, about 38 years of age, with regular features, a close cropped brown beard, sharp brown eyes, a fine forehead, and a bald head with a fringe of brown hair. He dresses simply and in good taste. He appreciates a good story, a well made cocktail, a mild cigar, and plug tobacco.

FASHIONABLE intelligence in the English Court Chronicle: "Her majesty is expecting an accession of grandchildren. HON. ELIHU B. WASHBURNE, who was an apprentice in the office of the Christian Intelligencer in Gardiner, Maine, in 1823, once said: "To a boy who is desirous of educating himself there is not a better school than a printing office. I am satisfied that I learned more in the one year I was in the Intelligencer office than I have ever learned in any one year of my life."

MANY of the wealthiest men in New York began poor. Jay Gould was a cowbow, James R. Keene came from England with twenty dollars in his pocket, Rufus Hatch began by dealing in "garden sass," D. Appleton kept a grocery store, James Watson Webb was a country clerk, Henry Villard was a reporter, Leonard Jerome was an itinerant printer, H. B. Claflin was a Vermont school teacher, Charles O'Connor was born in a shanty of the poorest of Irish parents and Peter Cooper was a hatter's apprentice.

SOUTHERN INTELLIGENCE.

Two of the most gorgeous sections of railroad in the world will be on the Marietta and North Georgia and the Western North Carolina at Red Marble Gap, North Carolina. Both roads will run for a mile on road beds composed of variegated marble of the finest quality.

THE RAZOR-BACK CACTUS.

From the Texas Siftings.

We ought to be able to get off something very sharp about the prickly pear, for there is a great deal about the prickly pear that is really sharp, viz.: the thorns; but thus far we have not succeeded, although we have made several earnest efforts Unfortunately, the prickly pear is a subject you cannot drop all at once after you once pick it up, so here we go again.

The prickly pear belongs to the slab-sided, razor-back breed of cactus. It can be found in Texas on the Rio Grande, where there is a strip of territory sixty miles long and about twenty wide on which nothing else grows but prickly pears, and so thick are the clumps that the traveler cannot leave the road, which is hedged in by this razor-back cactus. When a Western Texas man, who has seen prickly pears every day of his life, afterwards happens to travel in Europe and is shown, as a great curiosity, one sickly little prickly pear plant in a flower-pot, it makes him laugh away down in his boots.

In order to flourish luxuriantly, the prickly pear asks for a semi-tropical climate, and a poor soil. The more tropical the climate and the poorer the soil, the bigger and higher the plant grows, and the more thorns it has to the square inch. Over in Mexico, where the soil is poorer than an amateur concert, the prickly pear grows six feet high, and the leaves are as big as those of an extension table, while in Texas it only grows of a convenient length to sit down on.

There are some purposes the prickly pear is good for, and there are others for which it is good for nothing. The fruit, which is about the size and shape of an infant pair, is of a rich, purple color. It looks as if it might taste delicious, but a moderately fastidious hog would elevate his nose at it, such a sickening flavor has it got. The prickly pear plant is covered from head to foot with long keen needles of assorted sizes, that for sharpness and meanness may well cause the blush of shame and envy to mantle the cheek of a wasp. Never sit down on the prickly pair bush to rest yourself. Take our word for it. We tried it once, accidentally. It was many years ago, but the memory of it haunts us still, when we sit down.

A prickly pear bush is a good place to nose around if you want to be bitten by a rattlesnake, which hightoned reptile usually has his private residence at the root of a clump of prickly pears. If you want to find out how painful it is to have a thankless child, just fool around a prickly pear bush near the Rio Grande. You will know right off how sharp a serpent's tooth is, and, as Shakspeare says that it is sharper than a serpent's tooth to have a thankless child, a pretty fair estimate of the sharpness of a thankless child can be obtained.

But the prickly pear is otherwise useful to man and beast. It can be fed to advantage and to cattle in an emergency after first burning off the thorns. As a poultice for sores and wounds the prickly pear is unrivalled. If properly applied it might even heal the feeling of soreness between Conkling and Blaine. A live hedge can be made of clumps of prickly pears that will keep out even an office-seeker. There should be a hedge of that kind around the gubernatorial mansion.

THE SPEER SYNDICATE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 28, 1883. Editors of The Constitution: It has recently come to my notice that Mr. Emory Speer, a titular congressman of your state, is at present engaged in a most disreputable dicker and barter with the notorious William E. Chandler, secretary of the navy. It appears that John E. Bryant is anxious to control the delegation from Georgia in the next national republican convention in the interest of Mr. Blaine. To enable him to do so with ease, Bryant wishes to control all the federal appointments in Georgia. But a barrier was found in the person of congressman Speer. Whereupon Bryant at once went to Chandler and begged him to use his official influence with Speer, and cause him to "keep hands off" until Bryant and company could carry out their "slate" and Chandler at once addressed himself to the task, and very soon persuaded Speer that he could secure him the district attorneyship of the northern district at the expiration of his congressional term and Speer now expects to succeed Bigby, when he proposes to institute criminal proceedings, in the federal courts against many of those who voted against him in the recent election. To sum up, as the lawyers say, Emory Speer has sold out body and soul to Bryant and Chandler for the promise of being made district attorney to succeed Bigby, and Bryant and Speer are now daily closeted together, and when two such characters are found plotting together, no good is designed by them for the people of Georgia. There is another fact that ought to be known in Georgia, and that is that Speer is one of the most supple tools that Chandler and Robeson have in congress. In season and out of season the, versatile Speer is ever ready to spit out his cheap oratory in behalf of the nautical schemes which those worthies are now engineering.

But this is Speer's last chance, and he is evidently anxious to make hay when the sun shines. Hereafter the Georgia "syndicate" will read thus: Speer, Bryant, Wilson, Buck & Co. ALTAMAHA.

THE SOUTH AND THE YANKEES.

The Memphis Appeal, following the line of thought of THE CONSTITUTION on the subject of our lack of manufactures, says:

The impression still obtains that the southern people cherish such a deadly hatred to yankees that they will neither smell, taste, touch, nor handle anything contaminated by yankee hands. This is a most egregious error. The southern people love the yankee, and they show this affection in a thousand different ways. When they retire at night they unbutton yankee buttons to yankee-made coats, waistcoats, pantaloons, shirts and drawers. They pull off yankee boots with yankee boot-jacks, and divest their feet of yankee socks. They march to yankee bedsteads, turn down yankee coverlets, yankee blankets, prostrate themselves on yankee mattresses, and lay their heads upon yankee pillows. The bedbugs are the only things not made by yankee hands and imported from the land of the yankees. On rising in the morning we tread yankee carpets, stumble over yankee chairs and sofas, build a fire with yankee coal taken from yankee scuttles, in yankee grates, catch the ashes in yankee pans, and use yankee pokers, yankee shovels and tongs. We repair to yankee washstands, pour water from yankee pitchers in yankee bowls, and wash with yankee soap; then use yankee towels and tooth brushes. Next we march to a yankee bureau, stand before a yankee glass, and use yankee combs, yankee brushes, yankee powder, yankee cologne in yankee bottles. We sit down in a yankee chair to a yankee table, covered with yankee cloth, yankee knives and forks, yankee dishes, and feed upon yankee food. We call for yankee toothpicks, seize yankee hats from yankee racks, turn the key to a yankee lock, open a yankee door, enter a yankee buggy, seize the yankee reins to a yankee harness and repair to our place of business, and spend the day trading on yankee industry. The south is rich in resources, but our people are so fond of the yankee that they lavish their wealth upon yankee enterprise.

There is a lesson in this statement. It is not quite as bad as the Appeal paints it. In Atlanta we enter an Atlanta buggy, and handle Atlanta harness, and use Atlanta cologne, and wear Atlanta boots, and rest our heads on Atlanta pillows, scratch Atlanta matches, use Atlanta watches, sleep on Atlanta mattresses, made of Atlanta cloth on Atlanta bedsteads, sweep with Atlanta brooms, travel with Atlanta trunks, get cool Atlanta beer with Atlanta ice, build with Atlanta brick, cook with Atlanta stoves, in Atlanta pans, plow with Atlanta plows, and dig with Atlanta hoes, eat Atlanta bonbons from Atlanta boxes, dress before Atlanta bureaus, with drawers of Atlanta sheeting, and are buried in an Atlanta coffin in Atlanta dirt. Call on us next year and we'll have this list very much enlarged.

PLANETS IN FEBRUARY.

From the Providence Journal.

Venus is morning star, the brightest and fairest of the throng that grace the morning sky. She rises now three hours before the sun, shining with the serene radiance that distinguishes her, and continues to be visible long after the lesser stars have melted away in the star depths, almost in the very presence of the king of day.

The February moon fulls on the 21st at thirty-four minutes after 7 o'clock in the evening. She takes on only three phases during the shortest month of the year, appearing as new moon, at her first quarter and as full moon. She is in conjunction before her change with Venus on the morning of the 4th, being only about one degree south. On the sixth she is near Mars, and on the 7th near Mercury. Passing at new moon to the sun's eastern side, she is in conjunction with Neptune and Saturn on the 13th. She is at her nearest point to Jupiter on the 16th, and on the 23d, two days after the full, she is near Venus. When the moon is in conjunction with a planet, she is in the same right ascension or longitude, though her declination, or latitude may be several degrees north or south. Those who watch her progress eastward, averaging thirteen degrees daily, will note that her conjunction with the planets give the order of their position in regard to the sun. Thus she passes Venus, Mars and Mercury, the morning stars, then pays her respects to Neptune, Saturn, and Jupiter, the evening stars, and ends the circuit by coming near to Uranus, a morning star.

Students of the stars who follow the movements of the planets in February will find it interesting work to trace their winding paths. Venus reaches her greatest western elongation and is near the star Pi Sagittarii, Mercury is in inferior conjunction with the sun, Mars is near Mercury, and Neptune and Saturn are in quadrature.

Premature Presidential Fruit.

From the Baltimore Day.

A movement in favor of a candidate for the presidency artificially started from eighteen months to two years before the meeting of the convention is apt to share the fate of those peaches which our eastern shore friends call "premature." These ripen early and look much superior to the slower fruit alongside of them, but they invariably drop before picking time, and always have a worm in them.

Railroad Passes and Legislators.

From the Atchison Patriot.

Yes, what Kansas legislator will introduce a bill like that? Is there one who has sand enough in his craw? We would just like to see such a bill introduced; would like to see it pushed on through the various stages of legislation to a final vote, and then to study the roll call. If there is a member of the legislature who dares to introduce a bill like that Pennsylvani bill, let him make haste to come to the front. We are waiting to immortalize him.

STORIES ABOUT ANIMALS.

A WILD CAT STONED TO DEATH.

From the Richmond Whig.

Abram Keller, of Edinburgh, caught a wild cat in his fox trap in Massanuttan mountain last week He killed it with stones, after being frightened by a mate to the captured beast, which showed fight but afterwards left the scene.

WILD GEESE IN CALIFORNIA.

From the San Francisco Call.

Wild geese are greatly damaging the grain in the San Joaquin valley. A man killed sixteen at one shot in Stanislaus county the other day. It is not safe to eat them, on account of the quantity of poison set out for them by the farmers.

A GOLDEN EAGLE.

From the Keokuk Gate City.

Dr. J. M. Shalfer received a fine golden eagle, yesterday, killed in Clark county, which measured seven feet from tip to tip of the wings, the talons having a clutch covering eight inches, and weighing eleven pounds. Holiday turkey has no fascination for the doctor when he has such a specimen as this about.

SEARCHING FOR A PANTHER.

The ravages of a panther continue to be reported through the country from Douglass, Mass., southwest into Connecticut. Sportsmen think they have discovered the den of the beast or the beasts. Parties organized for the hunt have, so far, been unsuccessful in their search for the animal. The story comes from New London that some time since a farmer's son named Stone, living in Oxford, disappeared and has not been heard from. It has been current that his remains were recently found in the woods in a mangled condition. They indicated the work of a wild beast.

MUSKRATS IN ODD PLACES.

From the Ogdensburg Journal.

The Plattsburg Telegraph says: "A live muskrat was caught on the bay Wednesday by employes of the D. and H. company. The rat was found in a half starved condition It was brought into the depot, warmed and fed, and then allowed its freedom." The muskrats appear to have been very careless last fall in building houses. Three have been captured in one cellar in the Second ward of this city. It is supposed they went up the sewer from the canal.

A THAWED OWL ON A SPREE.

From the Worcester Gazette.

A well known place of physical refreshment in Concord, New Hampshire, is presided over by John Adams, a man of such tender sensibilities that when, the other night, just as he was shutting up shop, he discovered a half frozen owl on the doorstep, he took the bird in and made it comfortable. When he retired for the night he left the owl perched upon the safe, to which one of its legs was fastened with a stout cord, and blinking with extreme gratitude and devotion. As soon as he had gone the owl bit the cord in two, devoured every fragment of food on a well stocked lunch counter, sampled every kind of liquor in the saloon, broke all the bottles and decanters within reach, and in the morning when the doors were opened was standing solemnly behind the bar ready for business.

A FIGHT WITH A WILD HOG.

Robert Doddrill, of Braxton county, W. Va., was badly hurt a few days ago by a wild hog. It seems Mr. Doddrill, with some two or three men, was out hunting wild hogs, and succeeded in catching a large one with their dogs, which they tied and Mr. Doddrill undertook to drive home. They had gone some distance when the hog turned and attacked him. In trying to get out of its reach he fell, and the hog pitched upon him, cutting him badly in the leg above the knee, and it is thought he ran a very narrow escape, as it was all the men could do to get the hog off him with the dogs. They had not their guns with them at the time of the attack.

AN EAR-RING FOUND IN THE GILLS OF A FISH.

From the Bodie Free Press.

Last September several young ladies and gentlemen from Bodie visited Lundy on a pic-nic excursion. While out fishing in the lake one of the young ladies dropped a small ear-ring overboard and it immediately disappeared. She mourned the loss, of course, and never expected to see the piece of jewelry again On Monday last John Murphy, a Mill Creek miner, caught a three pound trout in lake Lundy while fishing through a hole in the ice. When the fish was opened the lost ear-ring was found embedded in one of its gills. When the ear-ring sunk in the water the trout evidently grabbed it and in trying to swallow it the pin pierced the gill.

THE CHAMPION WOLF STORY.

From the Tulare, Cal., Times.

A strange story is related by some persons who reside near Lemoore. It is vouched for by several persons of known veracity. It relates to the foresight and invention manifested by a large wolf that infests that district. The parties in question had been missing poultry for some time. The decimation had proceeded to that extent that it aroused to activity the defensive faculties of the poultry owners. While one of them, a Mr. Stark Hill, was looking about for some traces of the depredator he came across a duck that had been raised by W. R. Massmeyer. Its head was all that was visible. The body had been buried with the wings spread out, and the earth had been tramped down. The duck was still alive, although it had been missing for three days. It is evident that the wolf had taken this plan to supply its future wants, and had managed to keep the fowl alive so that it would not spoil before he should want it.

A WHITE DEER SHOT IN MAINE.

From the Bangor, Maine, Whig.

The approach of the close time for deer and the fact that transportation and trafic in venisen is not allowable in the eyes of the law after to-day have conspired to make the dealing in deer quite lively during the past few days. Yesterday two loads, twenty-six deer in all, arrived in this city from the vicinity of Union River. Among this lot was an albino. It was quite largely light color and the rear portion was as white as the driven snow. The animal was of large size and weighed about 250 pounds. It was killed in the vicinity of Aurora by Dana L. Jordon, of that town.

THE MUSKRAT AS A DELAWARE DAINTY.

Sussex letter in the Wilmington Gazette.

Very few of the city readers of the Gazette probably know anything of muskrat hunting on the Sussex marshes. When the marsh is frozen over nicely the sport is very enticing, and not without its spice of danger, a broken arm or leg, or even a dislocated neck, provided the rat hole you slip into is large and deep enough. The spear is the weapon used, and, in expert hands, never fails to bring the rodent impaled on the point from its hole. Down in Cave Neck the marsh farmers, besides making a snug sum of money by the sale of muskrat hides, use the meat on their tables with great relish. Put a brace of fricaseed rats before a Wilmington epicure, and the odds are that he couldn't tell 'em from rabbit.

A DOG STORY.

From the Tuscola, Illinois Journal.

The most singular dog story of the season was related to us the other day, but owing to the extreme modesty of our informant we suppress name and locality. It is substantially as follows: A dog belonging to our informant presented himself one day recently at the kitchen door with a good-sized pup in his mouth. As there were no young canines about the premises or in the immediate vicinity the members of the household, of course, were considerably surprised, and especially at the manner in which this one was ushered into their presence. Food having been given them the dog soon disappeared with his charge, returning shortly without it. Search was instituted, but no pup could be found. For several days afterward the dog was noticed to carry away the greater portion of the food given him, without scarcely ever eating any. Upon following him it was learned that he carried his food to the aforesaid pup, which was found to be snugly housed under the porch near by.

COURTING.

There's lots of fun in courting,
If you know the way to do it;
It's the choicest kind of sporting
Once you get accustomed to it,
Do your courting moderately,
As a business, not a favor;
Make haste slowly, it adds greatly
To the fun a piquant flavor.

Court your sweetheart in the kitchen,
In the parlor, in the park;
And you'll find the most bewitchin'
Times for courting after dark.
Court for love; most women like it.
Nay, I am certain they all do;
And the fellow who can strike it
Once will hanker for it, too.

Court a woman for herself, sir,
For the virtue that is in her;
Don't go courting her for pelf, sir;
You will rue it if you win her.
Court a woman boldly, bravely;
Never court her for a fool;
When you do, she'll teach you naively
How a woman scorned can rule.

Court a woman for a wife, sir,
For a mother good and true;
And my word you'll find this life, sir,
Paradise enough for you.
And such courting beats strawberries,
Peaches frozen in ice cream;
Champagne frapps, brandied cherries,
'Tis a sunny, golden dream.

THE SPEECHES.

THE NATIONAL LEGISLATORS AND THEIR ORATORICAL TRAITS.

The Lack of Orators in the Senate and the House—Vest, Ingalls, Beck, Bayard, Voorhees, Harrison and Other Senatorial Speakers—The House—Hooker, Carlise, Cox and Others.

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, January 26.—While listening to the eulogies of Senator Hill yesterday, I was reminded of the great change in the complexion of the senate, which the last two years have wrought. How the body has suffered by that light touch of time's hard hand! Then the democrats had Thurman, Eaton, Kernan, McDonald, Wallace and Whyte, all now living, but in the hurly-burly of politics left out of the senate. These are gone besides the matchless orator whose memory was freshened yesterday by many a sweet tribute. The other side of the chamber has lost almost as heavily. Blaine is out to enter politics no more, unless he can do so as a presidential candidate, Conkling, without even that hope. Carpenter dead. The three brightest lights of the left thus gone—and every one replaced by men of ordinary calibre. The democrats have supplied their losses, as a rule with inferior material, and the senate of to-day is by no means what it was in January 1880. Senator Hill's loss is most str kingly seen in the fact that it removed the most popular, as well as the most powerful orator of those palmy days. Few good speakers are left in tne senate, for every one of the men who came near rivalry with him in the witchery of eloquence has disappeared from that high arena. I do not except Mr. Voorhees as his latter days have shown little of the fire that warmed his earlier efforts into glowing beauty, and he has become a close manuscript talker with something of affectation in his airs of senatorial gravity.

SENATORIAL ORATORS.

Judged by their usual efforts, it must be confessed that there is not an orator in the senate. Mr. Vest is at times impassioned and powerful, but these are his best and occasional moments. He is, however, the most popular of the speakers in the senate, unless it be Mr. Ingalls, whose excellence is as opposite to that of the impetuous Missourian as the two poles. Vest is warm, impulsive and magnetic. Ingalls is cold, deliberate, and precise, His tall gaunt figure; his clear, metallic voice; and his sallow face, absolutely without any expression, but that of penetrating intellectuality, make him the representative of sarcasm and satire. His language is the best that is heard on the floor and his sentences would fit into a review with very little emendation. He has studied the art of expression devotedly. The qualities named make him stronger as an opponent than as an advocate. He could never win men to any cause where their prejudices were set against it, but he can use the artillery of ridicule with remarkable effect against the strongest logic. In that one side of oratory he is the peer of Mr. Hill, so far as verbal expression goes without the power of look and gesture which gave a keener and a double edge to the cutting satire of the Georgian. Ben Harrison, of Indiana, came to the senate with reputation as an orator based on his stump speeches and what his friends considered his worsting of Hendricks in the Garfield campaign. He has done nothing in the oratorical line since he began his senatorial career.

EDMUNDS AND SHERMAN.

Edmunds, the attorney of his party, is the conversational talker of the court room, while John Sherman, the most active and influential of the republican leaders, is devoid of every grace of oratory. Senator Beck has been aptly described as speaking like a Scotch bag pipe. Senator Bayard has a bad tenor voice while Pendleton is husky and stiff. We all know what plain, homely talk Senator Brown always gives at home. He talks to the senate the same way and it is effective talk here as it is there because it carries a freight train of common sense every trip.

THE HOUSE ORATORS.

The house is better off for orators than the senate. The first place among them is perhaps held by Mr. Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, who has the advantage of personal physique and a bell-like voice. On the hustings his acute sense of humor sometimes calls into play a power of mimicry that on the stage would have made him the rival of Sothern. General Hooker, of Mississippi, represents better than any other man in congress the pure type of southern oratory. His diction is rich to luxuriance. His every thought is clothed and colored by a tropical fancy. His delivery is graceful to a rare degree, and in the most impassioned moments he is courtly in every movement.

SUNSET COX.

The quick and ready man of the house, as everybody knows, is Sunset Cox. He rings in to his "ex tempore" speeches many an expression polished up and trimmed down by scholarly study before, but with all due discount for such tricks, he is still a man of wonderful gift of speech. Tripped a dozen times he never fails to catch on his feet with a sharp repartee ready for his opponent. His memory is marvellous. Many of his aptest illustrations are drawn from the Bible and Shakspeare. I doubt if there are many doctors of divinity in the country more familiar with the Bible than he and I will venture the assertion that he knows more of Shakspeare than any man in America. Neither Mr. Carlilse or Mr. Randall are attractive speakers.

KASSON AND ROBESON.

Kasson would be the best one on his side if it were not for the apparent affectation and appearance of nicety as if he were handling the subject with the tips of his fingers. Robinson, of Massachusetts, is earnest and very manly in his bearing. Reed, of Maine, is as keen as a brier, consulted on all his party does and ever ready to fly to his feet, but with a face and a voice like an overgrown fat boy of fifteen. Robeson is ready always but his Falstaffian figure and his bellows-like delivery make him remote from the most liberal definition of eloquence.

CONGRESSIONAL ORATORY.

There can be no doubt that the style of oratory in this country is undergoing a marked change. It is becoming calmer and sterner. Trope and figure are being severely pruned, and rhetoric is falling under suspicion. The antithetic clauses and the rounded periods that were indispensable in the oration of fifty years ago are now rarely heard in the best deliverances. A danger is seen by some in going too far in this reform. If the search for naked strength carries us back to the ponderous and indigestible style of the old English models we may not gain much by the death of the American "spread-eagle." But whatever changes may come in the popular estimation of true oratory, whatever men may rise to charm with the tongues of eloquence, no changes can derogate from the value of the recorded words; no new fame can eclipse that of the great Georgian, whose voice used to command the attention of this nation from both wings of the capitol, but who never there or elsewhere rose to the heights of power he reached on the old red hills of Georgia. They were to him always an inspiration, and they will be for him forever a sacred shrine.

Failures Reported.

NEW ORLEANS, January 29.—A dispatch to the Times-Democrat from Starkville, Mississippi, reports the seizure there of the entire stock of T. J. Price, general merchant, by the creditors in Louisville. Liabilities not definitely known, but greatly exceeds assets.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., January 29.—Walker & Co., whisky dealers, made an assignment. Liabilities from $35,000 to $40 000. Assets not known. The failure is in consequence of congressional agitation over the bonded period.

A Forger's Suicide.

NEW YORK, January 29.—Stewart, the forger, of Dallas, Texas, who cut his throat last night, died in New York hospital at midnight last night.

ONE OF MORGAN'S RAIDS.

A Ride of Fifty Miles in Thirty Hours—The Essentials of a General.

From the New Orleans Picayune.

"Yes, Morgan was a much greater soldier than he is generally considered," said Colonel Thomas H. Hunt, of New Orleans, the other evening, to a representative of the Picayune, after a rambling discussion of the merits of the various confederate generals. "He was far more than a raider, and had in him all the elements that make up a great leader."

"Well, Colonel, I know you led one of the most gallant Kentucky regiments in the southern army, and are familiar with the country in which Morgan gained his fame; were you ever with him?" was the query.

"Yes, sir; it was my good fortune to be under his command when he made the attack on Hartsville in 1862. That has been pronounced by able military critics the most brilliant achievement of the war, and I was so impressed with the military genius of the man on that occasion, that I shall never cease to regard him with the highest veneration."

Upon being pressed the Colonel went on: 'In the winter of 1862, while the confederate army lay in camp at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, General Morgan got exact information of the position of the enemy across the Cumberland, and determined to strike one of those quick and décisive blows for which he was famous. General Harlan's division of 8,000 men was encamped at Castilian Springs, while a force of 2,000 federals were posted eight miles below him. The problem was to cross the Cumberland, whip, and, if possible, capture this latter force, and escape before Harlan could come up.

"He asked for two regiments of infantry to accompany him, and mine, the 5th Kentucky, was chosen as a part of the force. The boys were ragged and many shoeless, and after an inspection I selected those who were well shod and comfortably clad. It was bitter cold and the men must have suffered intensely.

"When we reached the Cumberland a council of war was called, and when I was informed of the position, I suggested, of course, that Harlan would come up as soon as he heard the firing and capture our whole command. 'No,' said Morgan, 'he will not. He well get his troops in line and wait for a courier to inform him of the situation, and I will take care that the courier shall not reach him by posting a line of scouts across the country.' This was an exhibition of one of the highest qualities of generalship—knowledge of what the enemy would do under certain circumstances. Well, sir, he actually accomplished his purpose. With a force of 1,200 he marched fifty miles in a deep snow, crossed the Cumberland twice, captured 2,000 prisoners and much plunder, and brought them into camp, all in thirty hours."

"What did you do with the prisoners, Colonel?"

"They were paroled the next day and permitted to go home. As we were recrossing the river at a ford below Hartsville, Morgan ordered the cavalry to carry the prisoners over behind them on horseback, as the thermometer was far below the freezing point. The men in blue crowded around him and exclaimed 'Well, if we had caught you we would have treated you to rope, but we know now you are not as bad a man as we thought.'"

A Negro Murders his Wife.

IVOR, VA., January 29.—Last night a negro named Lewis Carter, living on Doctor Pritlaw's farm, this Southampton county, attacked his wife with an axe crushing her skull, from the effects of which she died this morning. The murderer escaped. The cause of the crime is not known.

"WOULD HAVE IT IF IT COST $50."

SPRINGFIELD, Robertson County, Tenn. November 27th, 1880.

DR. J. BRADFIELD:

Sir: My daughter has been suffering for many years with that dreadful affliction known as "Female Disease," which has cost me many dollars, and, notwithstanding I had the best medical attendance, could not find relief. I have used many other kinds of medicines without any effect. I had just about given her up, was out of heart, but happened in the store of W. W. Eckler several weeks since and he, knowing of my daughter's affliction, persuaded me to buy a bottle of your "FEMALE REGULATOR." She began to improve at once. I was so delighted with its effects that I bought several more bottles.

The price—$1.50 per bottle—seemed to be very high at first, but now I think it the cheapest preparation on the globe; and, knowing what I do about it, if to-day one of my family was suffering with that awful disease, I would have it if it cost $50 a bottle; for I can truthfully say it has cured my daughter sound and well, and my wife and self do most heartily recommend your "FEMALE REGULATOR" to be just what it is recommended to be. Respectfully,

H. D. FEATHERSTON.

Stranger—"I say, Mister Big Head, you seem to be a little 'off.' What ails you?"

Big Head—"Well, yes; you see I was out with the boys last night, and got kinder mixed."

Stranger—"It appears so from the looks of your head."

Big Head—"It don't feel exactly like my head; 'pears to be kinder 'swelled up,' and as if it had a notion to 'bust,' and the pain is terrible."

Stranger—"If you will get a bottle of Bailey's Saline Aperient, one or two doses will 'put a head on you,' that your friends would recognize."

Big Head—"I'll do any thing to get rid of all this pain and suffering."

This marvelous remedy cures those terrible headaches, cleanses the stomach, unloads the bowels, unlocks the liver, relieves constipation at once, and gives the bile a chance to go. It has become the popular and standard remedy for constipation, biliousness, sick headache, heartburn, acid stomach, and all diseases requiring a real nice and pleasant purgative or physic.

It never nauseates nor gripes, acts in one or two hours, and is just so delightful and refreshing a drink, that everybody likes it.

It unclouds and cools the brain, quiets the nerves, and is a sine qua non for the headache of ladies.

It mitigates the pangs of rheumatism and gout, relieves kidney and urinary troubles, and pain in the back. For dyspeptics it acts like a charm, and has no equal in curing a constipated habit. It is highly recommended for persons who travel, for merchants, clerks, mechanics, factory hands, students, teachers and all persons who lead a closely confined life and are subject to headache, dizziness and torpid bowels. If you are troubled with a coated tongue, foul breath, loss of appetite or general sluggishness, Bailey's Saline Aperient will cure you. It performs better work than pills, is more pleasant and palatable, and is much cheaper, in fact it is a regular family medicine chest within itself.

It sparkles and foams just like a glass of soda water, and is just as pleasant. 50 cents and sold every-where. J. P. DROMGOOLE & Co., Proprietors, Louisville, Ky

A WOMAN'S REMEDY.

At certain ages and periods of woman's life, there comes certain troubles, aches, pains and sufferings.

These complaints and irregularities jeopardize the girl's life at sixteen, and follow up and haunt the married woman until after the "turn of life."

Some have headaches, swimming of the head, mental and nervous prostration, blanched cheeks, bloodless lips, lifeless eyes, clouded brain; while others suffer with painful irregularities, uterine displacements and ulcers, hysterical spasms, physical prostration, chronic leucorrhœa, chlorosis, suppressions, loss of appetite, ovarian diseases, kidney affections, etc., which in numerous cases end in epileptic fits, convulsions, insanity and death. These are generally the result of inattention. All females know the class of complaints we allude to. Now, ladies, all these troubles can be averted and cured. We have proof from thousands.

Dr. Dromgoole's English Female Bitters will cure you sound and well—will make you healthy and happy—will make you feel like a new woman and no mistake. Sold by all Druggists at $1.00. Send your address for a copy of Dr. Dromgoole's Family Medical Adviser, free to the afflicted.

REMARKABLE

Letter From a Traveler.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Sept. 29, 1882.

I think it a duty I owe to humanity to say what your remedy has done for me. One year ago I contracted a bad case of blood disease, and not knowing the result of such troubles. I allowed it to run on for some time, but finally applied to the best physician in this city, who treated me for six months. In that time I took over 600 pills of protodide of murcury, ¼ grain each, and had run down in weight from 210 to 157 pounds, and was confined to my bed with Mercurial Rheumatism, scarcely able to turn myself in bed Being a traveling man, some of the fraternity found me in this deplorable condition, and recommended me to try your specific, SSS cases that as they had been knew of cured by several its use. I commenced the use of it with very little faith, and in less than three weeks was able to take my place on the road. The sores and copper-colored spots gradually disappeared, and to-day I have not a sore or spot on my person, and my weight is 217 pounds, being more than it ever was. I do not wish you to publish my name, but you may show this letter to any who doubt the merit of S. S. S., for I know it is a sure cure.

Yours truly, J. H. B.

Some thirty years ago there lived in Montgomery, Ala., a young man who was terribly afflicted. After being treated for a long time by the medical profession of this town with no benefit, he commenced taking S. S. S. After persistently taking it two months he was cured. Being acquainted with him for twenty years thereafter, I can testify that the disease never made its return.

A WORD TO OUR READERS

When you read of a medicine that will cure all diseases, beware of it, for every scientific physician on earth knows how fallacious such statements are. But when you read of a medicine compounded by a regular physician and surgeon of high standing that claims to cure only a certain disease, and furnishes high proof that it does this, you can safely try it, and with the assurance that it will cure you. DR. V. R. STONE, late physician and surgeon of the U. S. A., has placed before the public a preparation called

APEPSIA!

Which no doubt is the greatest scientific preparation yet discovered for the cure of dyspepsia in all its forms, and refers to thousands of ladies and gentlemen of the highest respectability that have been cured of cases pronounced incurable by the best physicians in the country. The following references should be sufficient to convince the most sceptical:

THE COTTON MARKET

CONSTITUTION OFFICE
Atlanta, January 29 1883

New York—The cotton market was quiet and steady to day, and from the opening futures bore downward, though just before the close a mild reaction occurred. By the action of the market to-day the months sustained a loss of about five points. Spots remain unchanged; middling 10 3-16c.

Net receipts for two days 54,676 bales against 34,218 bales last year; exports 38,817 bales; last year 14,992 bales; stock 879,929 bales; last year 1,142,290 bales.

Below we give the opening and closing quotations of cotton futures to-day:

NEW YORK, January 29—The Post's cotton market report says: "Future deliveries, after losing 7@6-100, in consequence of unfavorable Liverpool advices and large port receipts, recovered 1@2-100, and sold at the third call: March at 10.25, April 10.39, May 10 53, August 10.91; January and February was offered at 10.12. After the recent heavy deliveries in Liverpool a quiet time may be expected in that market. Should our port receipts approach or equal those in February, 1881, as predicted by well informed parties, a depressing effect is likely to be felt both here and at Liverpool. Receipts of 200,000 bales less than in 1881 from this date to the end of August will be sufficient to make a crop of 6,750,000 bales."

CITY NEWS.

THE REGULAR RECORD OF CURRENT LOCAL EVENTS.

The Day's Doing in Public Offices—The Record of the Courts, the Railroads and Hotels—Capitol Jottings—Real Estate Operations—Improvements—Gossip of all Kinds.

The city court will meet on Monday next.

The recorder's court was large yesterday morning.

About twenty Atlantians left Sunday for Cincinnati.

Nothing new was heard of the Rudd murderers yesterday.

The Bidden Hand party carries a small mule and a small pony with them.

Andy Stewart denies the statement that his pet, the West End hyena, is dead.

A large sale of blooded cows will take place at Miller & Brady's next Thursday.

The car shed gates are soon to be closed in order to keep out a big crowd of loafers.

Jim Payne, a convict, escaped from his squad yesterday near the Peters street crossing.

Twenty colored laborers passed through Atlanta yesterday en-route to the Georgia Pacific road in Alabama.

The Boston excursionists en route to New Orleans to attend mardi gras passed through the city yesterday.

Mr. Philip Mathey's barber shop, on Whitehall, was closed yesterday on account of the death of his infant son.

Seventy-five sleeping car berths for New Orleans have been applied for. Atlanta will be well represented at mardi gras.

Two lunatics, one from Forsyth county, the other from Habersham county, passed through the city yesterday en-route to the asylum.

BUILDING AND IMPROVEMENT NOTES.

The house painters are complaining of too much work for too little money.

C. T. Morrow is building a pretty cottage on Decatur street, near Bell street.

Mr. J. H. Innis is just completing a neat five room cottage on Pratt street.

Workmen are engaged laying a sidewalk on Wheat street, between Ivy and Collins.

The real estate agents are busy making out new lists of property in their hands for sale.

Mr. Lynch is erecting a handsome two story frame residence on Ivy street, near Gilmer street.

The new sidewalk on East Peters street from Whitehall to Washington will be finished to day.

Mr. Samuel W. Goode, the Marietta street real estate agent, will soon begin building a residence on Cox street.

The indications are that there will be a steady increase in the value of real estate. So say those who are posted.

The old Karwisch barracks, corner Decatur and Collins streets, is undergoing repairs, and will soon look like a new building.

Mr. Samuel Faulkner will soon begin the erection of a handsome two-story brick building on Markham street. The lower floor will be used as a store room and the second story as a residence.

An Advance in Value.

An Atlanta gentleman who is largely interested in the Exposition cotton mills was yesterday offered a premium of fifteen per cent for ten thousand dollars worth of stock in the Exposition mills. The offer was as quickly refused as it was made. The mill is now being worked, and in a few days will be run to its fullest capacity.

Joe Patterson Captured.

Joe Patterson, whose mysterious assault upon his wife in Banks county, and which shocked everybody who read it, has been captured. He was captured by Mr. J. T. Faulkner, at Belton, and turned over to the sheriff of Banks county. Patterson's wife has died of her injuries.

The Blind Lady's Concert To-night.

It is to be hoped that the concert to be given to-night by the blind singer, Miss Phebie Looker, will be largely attended as Miss Looker is aged and blind and has an aged mother, two blind sisters and an invalid brother, all of whom look to her for support. Miss Looker will show how the blind read and write. Her concert will consist of both vocal and instrumental music. She will be assisted by some of Atlanta's best musical talent.

Wants His Daughter.

Mr. Frank Thompson, whose home is in Hall county, reached Atlanta yesterday in pursuit of his daughter, who ran away from home Friday last. Miss Thompson is a young lady of about eighteen years of age, and for some time past has been threatening to leave home and come to Atlanta where she could, as she asserted, make a living. She is rather small for her age, has black eyes and short black hair. Her father is a poor farmer and his poverty is the cause assigned by him for her departure.

Mr. Morgan's Mule.

Mr. Morgan, the Fulton county farmer, whose mule disappeared Saturday from the "hitch stone" near James's bank, found his quadruped yesterday near Fairburn. Soon after missing the mule, Mr. Morgan obtained a clue to the course taken by the rider, and as soon as he could go to his home and mount another mule he began a pursuit which ended after many devious turns yesterday morning near Fairburn. The mule when found was in the possession of a farmer named Loften, who had caught it in the road Sunday evening, where it had, probably, been abandoned by the person who rode it away.

Stealing From a Residence.

Mr. Landige's residence on Forsyth street was entered yesterday by a burglar who got away with several dollars' worth of property. The burglar entered the house through a rear window during the forenoon while the family was absent, Mr. Landidge being engaged with his business and Mrs. Landidge visiting a lady friend in another part of the city. After gaining the inside of the house the thief went into every room and picked out what he wanted. The missing articles are one coat, one pair pants, one clock, one ladies' cloak and some underwear. There is a good clue to the thief.

Grand Masquerade Ball.

A grand masquerade ball will be given in Concordia Hall, on Monday night, February 5th, next, under the auspices of the Catholic library association. Every arrangement has been made to make it one of the most select and pleasant affairs of the season. The committee on arrangements consists of Messrs. Peter F. Clarke, Patrick H. Meehan and Pascal J. Moran. The reception committee consists of Messrs. John J. Lynch, Matt Ryan and Jack J. Spalding. The floor managers will be Messrs. Joseph Auerbach, Wm. Manning, George A. Deihl, Thomas F. Flynn, Peter Regan and James F. Lynch. Tickets can be procured of any of the above gentlemen, or at the rooms of the Catholic library.

United States Court.

In the United States courts yesterday, the following cases were disposed of: Tony Castell, working in an illicit distillery. Plea guilty and sentence to one month in Fulton county jail. Lewis Farmer, illicit distiling, acquitted. Andrew Edmundson, illicit distilling, acquitted. James Nix, distilling and working. Plea guilty. Remanded to await sentence. A. G. Sparks, illicit working and removing illegal whisky. Verdict guilty and sentence of three months, $200 and cost. G. W. Parks, violating revenue laws, plea guilty. Sentence one month $100 and costs. J. M. Morgan was admitted to practice. The bonds of Jack Elliott and Simon Ferguson were forfeited.

A Contest Settled.

A singular contested election case was decided by Governor Stephens yesterday. In Quitman county G. A. Whittaker received 122 votes for clerk of the superior court and R. F. Morris received two votes. Morris organized a contest on the ground that Whittaker was a non-resident and not elligible, alleging that he had moved from Georgetown, the county seat of Quitman county, and had taken up his abode in Eufaula. The governor did not think that the evidence sustained the allegation and accordingly decided in favor of Whittaker. The commission was accordingly issued yesterday.

The Commissioner's Court.

In the commissioner's court of W. C. Smith yesterday, the case against Thomas Barnwell, charged with mutilating a ten dollar gold piece, was concluded. The case was continued Saturday, in order to allow the coin to be produced in court. Yesterday it was found that the coin could not be brought int court, and the evidence without it being insufficient, the defendant was released. He set up as his defense that the alleged mutilation was merely a private mark. Thomas Mallory, of Campbell county, was before commissioner W. B. Smith, charged with conspiracy. This was one of the old Red Oak cases. The defendant was held in a bond of $200 for his appearance.

Mr. Byrd's Sudden Death.

Mr. Theodore H. Byrd, a well known Atlanta printer, died sudden yesterday morning at his home on Jackson street. Friday Mr. Byrd was at work but was complaining, and Saturday his family prevailed on him to stay at home. He came up town for a short time during the day and did about an hour's work. Saturday night he complained of a pain in his chest. He was not thought to be in a serious condition but Sunday night members of his family sat up with him. At six o'clock yesterday morning he grew suddenly worse and died at half past six. His funeral will occur at two o'clock today and will be attended by nearly all the printers of the city as he was a popular man and well known printer. He died of heart disease.

HIT AND HURT.

News runs in a groove. Saturday night two persons were assaulted on the streets of Atlanta, and last night the cowardly act was repeated. About nine o'clock as Mr Harry McGuire, an employe of the Western and Atlantic railroad, was passing along Ellis street he was assaulted from behind by an unknown person who struck him a murderous blow on the head with a stick. The stick was not hard, but Mr McGuire's head was, and the blow failed to knock him down, although the lick was made with enough force to break the assailant's weapon in two. Though somewhat confused by the assault, Mr. McGuire wheeled around and facing the villian made a brave charge which induced the rascal to do his best in getting away. Mr. McGuire's head was slightly cut by the lick, but the headache which ensued was his greatest pain.

THAT FIRE ALARM YESTERDAY.

An alarm of fire was turned in yesterday afternoon about three o'clock from box forty-six, located at the corner of Wheat and Collins streets. It was the first alarm that had been sounded for several days and the department, anxious to show its proficiency, was out in a second and in almost as short a time was at the place where the alarm originated. The fire was in the roof of the ell of a cottage, No. 84 Houston street, but had made such little progress by the time the hook and ladder company reached it, that it was easily extinguished with water from buckets. The fire was due to a defective flue, and damaged the building only a few dollars. The damages will be borne by insurance companies, as the cottage was amply protected in that way. It was occupied by Mr. Nesbitt.

STILL ANOTHER DISHONEST LAUNDRESS.

Mrs. Margarett Jackson, who resides upon Harris street, yesterday invoked the aid of the police in searching for her clothing, which are in the possession of an unknown washerwoman. Two weeks ago Mrs. Jackson gave her washing to a colored woman who applied for it, and who gave her name and home as Jennie Humphreys, Emma street. The washer promised to return the clothes by the last of that week, but did not do so. The second week come and went, and the wash was still absent. On Sunday morning, Mrs. Jackson read an account of Mrs. Sullivan's loss in THE CONSTITUTION and fearing that she too, had been made a victim, early yesterday sought for Jennie Humphrey's home on Emma street, but the result ended without success and then Mrs. Jackson reported her case to the police.

HE WILL RETIRE.

Yesterday a CONSTITUTION reporter met Major W. J. Houston, assistant general passenger agent of the Air line railroad, and remarked:

"Major, I hear that the statement that you would become connected with the Georgia Pacific was premature?"

"Not premature," replied the major, "it was justifiable at the time that it was made, but it would not be so now. I will leave the railroad business day after to-morrow."

"What will you do?"

"Retire to the shades of my DeKalb county farm and have a quiet time."

"What are your reasons for leaving the railroad business?" asked the reporter.

"While my relations here have been of the most pleasant and agreeable nature, I have no desire to accept a subordinate position. As the change in the business of this road leaves me out, I shall simply go back to my farm in DeKalb and spend my time there."

Major Houston has a very fine place in DeKalb, and if he is not glad that he has a chance to enjoy its quiet pleasures, he simply has a very vague idea of what true happiness is.

THE SMALL-POX.

No new cases of small-pox have been found in the last four or five days. There have been two deaths, however. Sandy Bowen's wife whose critical condition was mentioned in SUNDAY'S CONSTITUTION, died Sunday. Lucinda Cargile, who was thought to be doing well, was taken suddenly worse and died Sunday morning.

ASKED AND ANSWERED.

A correspondent asks:

"Will you be kind enough to answer the following questions in your valuable paper for the information of several subscribers who are in doubt as to the requirements of the board of health in small-pox cases:

1. It is obligatory to furnish guards, or in case of failure to do so, that the patient shall go to the city pest house.

2. Please inform us what are the requirements of the board of health in cases where small-pox exists? Say for instance, in a respectable family that are financially able to furnish the patient every attention, but dispute the legality or justice of being compelled to employ guards?

The answer is short and simple. A state law and a city law provide that the patient must pay the expenses of quarantining or go to the city hospital. There is also a heavy fine for failure to report small-pox cases. Several persons have paid guards under protest and will sue the city to recover.

THE HOWARD CASE.

The Jury Made Up and Evidence to Be Taken This Morning.

The trial of William H. Howard, charged with embezzling registered letters, while a clerk in the Atlanta post-office, was begun in the United States court yesterday before Judge McCay. The defendant was represented by Messrs. Hoke Smith and Hopkins & Glenn. District-Attorney Bigby and Assistant District-Attorney Parrot appeared for the prosecution. The case came up at three o'clock, and the afternoon was spent in securing the jury, which was as follows: Charles E. Richardson, colored; T. B. Mullins, white; Green Thompson, white; S. H. Hape, white; Henry Chappell, colored; D. O. White, white; Lewis Fewellen, colored; J. S. Anglin, white; A. W. Fickett, white; J. S. Callaway, white; James Cohen, white; Howard Garner, colored.

The following jurors were struck: James Drakeford, colored; A. A. Jones, colored; J. S. Whatley, white; H. C. Goodwyn, white; Lewis Bentley, colored: E. B. Thomas, white; Charles H Morgan, colored; W. A. Fuller, white; J. K. Thrower, white; M. N. Robinson, white; W. D. Moor, colored; J. A. Rush, white; J. H. Wright, white.

The following jurors who were summoned failed to appear and were fined $40 each: Richard Benson, John W. C. Allgood, Charles A. Cooper, James W. C. McMillen, Wm. L. Everett. When the jury was secured the court adjourned to meet this morning, when the taking of evidence will be begun. There are a very great many witnesses and the case will probably occupy several days.

THE CAVE SPRING CASE.

The Case Heard and Decided by the Governor—No Foundation For the Charges.

Yesterday Mr. John H. Dent, president of the board of trustees of the academy for the deaf and dumb at Cave Spring, Mr. S. C. Trout, secretary and treasurer, and Mr. W. O. Connor, principal of the institution, appeared before Governor Stephens to answer the charges lodged by Mr. James of Douglass in reference to the lack of food furnished the pupils. The governor had notified Mr. James of the fact that the case would be heard yesterday and no steps were taken until late in the day in order for Mr. Jones to appear and make good his charges. He did not appear nor send any word and late in the afternoon the governor heard the defense and was satisfied with the showing and ordered that the quarterly appropriation be paid as usual. The governor decided that Mr. James had abandoned the case. Mr. Connor was armed with numerous affidavits and statements and had among other things a statement from all the pupils that they received plenty to eat. Eight pupils complained that they wanted meat for breakfast. The bill of fare, as prescribed by the state, does not provide for meat for breakfast. The bill of fare is the same as that in use by the institute in Pennsylvania, and is pronounced unobjectionable by physicians. As Mr. James based his charges on the statement of his step-son, the following statement from him is interesting. The dialogue is between Mr. Conner and the boy:

"I told ma that the pupils did not like the bill of fare. They said they have only meat, beef and mutton for dinner. But they have no meat, beef and mutton for breakfast and supper. They had to eat two biscuit, butter and mush or grits for breakfast and supper. When I got here I would send one of the bill of fares to her. She said she would like to read it. I did not tell ma that the pupils did not get enough to eat. She misunderstood me."

"Is the above true? I thought you told Mr. James that the pupils did not get enough to eat?"

"Yes, it is all right."

"You eat every other week at the boys table. Do you always get enough to eat?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever see any of the boys who did not get enough to eat?"

"Yes, a few times."

"How many times do you think since October?"

"From four to six."

"Did you ever see me ask the boys at the table if they had enough?"

"Yes, often."

"Did you ever see me tell them if they did not get enough I wanted them to tell me?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever see any of the boys ask for more?"

"Yes, sometimes."

"What did I do?"

"You would give them more."

"Did you ever see me refuse to give a boy or girl more if they asked for it?"

"No."

A STREET CAR EPISODE.

The Driver Relates a Bit of War History for the Edification of the Passengers.

"I'll thank you for a chew of tobacco," said a West End car driver last night, breaking the awful silence that reigned while the car waited in front of the Inman residence for the incoming car tha was to meet it there.

"Looks like it might be kin to Lucy Hinton," continued the driver, as he tore off a chew and stowed it away where it was likely to do the most good. "The aint no tellin' how long I'll be waitin' here. It all comes er me runnin' in behin' that bob-tail car on the Whitehall line. That fellow don't have no passengers worth talkin' about, and he don't have nothing to do but to gallop up and down Whitehall street, and everytime I get down to the crossin' he's there waitin' and wants to know what makes me behind. He don't have no sech trouble as I have. I may have ter wait here twenty minutes."

The passengers yawned at the prospect and the driver went on:

"Now, I've run off four times to-day. The first time I run off was when I was goin' back on my first trip. Everything was goin' along bully. A young fellow got on in front er Buices, and said he had ter be at the office at eight o'clock. Well, there wasn't nothing hard about that. I was due in town at eight, so I come erlong nice on schedule time, when all at once the car left the track and dog take my skin if I wasn't just exactly half an hour gettin' out er that mud. Well, gentlemen, when I got that car back I was sweatin' worsen I was when I was tryin' to get away from Sherman's army. Lordlemity knows I never have wanted water since like I did that day. Well, sir, as I tell you, I was on the run and er sweaten' and skeered, and I come up into a ravine sortof a place where there was er spring with a trough runnin' from it. Well, I didn't have time to go to the spring, so as I run by the spout and caught out my tin cup and got some water and kept on runnin'. Pretty quick I got out in the big road and went along till I come to a nice shady place. I was so tired and sweatin' so that I says to myself, 'Well, I'll rest awhile here, if it kills me.' I hadent been there more'n a minute, when along come four fellows on horseback, and says they to me, 'What're you doing there?' and says I, 'Well, I'm gittin' out er the way er the yanks, and I guess you're doin' about the same thing, aint ye?' 'What do yer belong with,' says they, 'twenty-seventh Georgia,' says I. 'Come on with us,' says they; 'not yit,' says I. 'Why?' says they. 'I'm too dinged tired,' says I. Well, sir, after I got rested I went a little further and I come right up on our boys. Pooty soon there was a command to fall in, and I never seed fellers trimble so in my life. In a minit you could hear the guns pop, pop, pop, and then we was at it agin."

"I could tell you things that ud make yer hair stand right straight up," continued the driver, as he arose to go, "but I haven't got time now," and he closed the door behind him, and the passengers heard a voice say 'git a-ap," and the car moved on.

BRADSTREET BUDGET.

The Trade Embarrassments in Four Southern States.

There were 289 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the past week, 28 less than the preceding week, 84 more than the corresponding week in 1882, and 123 more than the same week in 1881. The middle states had 68, an increase of 1; New England states 36, a decrease of 3; southern states 71, an increase of 2; western states 95, a decrease of 14; Pacific states and territories 19, a decrease of 14; Canada provinces 26, an increase of 1. Although the number of failures continues to be very large, still the majority of them are those of small traders, while the few important ones are no larger than at this season last year. Among the failures of general interest were Hassinger & Brittain, wholesale hardware, and Stewart Brothers, manufacturers of cotton and woolen goods, Philadelphia; J. W. Humphrey & Co., oil well supplies, Bradford, Pennsylvania; Shriver Brothers, produce commission, Baltimore; Fay & Conkey, wholesale grocers, Chicago; M. Eisenstadt, wholesale jewelry, St. Louis, and M Armstrong & Son, leather and findings, New York city. In the principal trades they were as follows: General traders 63; grocers 4[illegible]; clothing 18; manufacturers 15; liquors 13; dry goods 12; shoes 8; fancy goods 8; jewelry 8; drugs 8; bakers and confectioners 8; tobacco and cigars 7; hotels and restaurants 7; hardware 7; books and stationery 6; millinery 5; hats 4; coal 4; furniture 4; gents' furnishing goods 4; produce and provisions 3.

WOMAN'S WAYS.

Two Cases in Which Females Figure as the Stars. Mysterious Disappearance.

There resides in Atlanta a physician whose wife suffers greatly with neuralgia, from which she gains relief only when thoroughly under the influence of morphine or some other opiate. One day in the latter part of last week the lady had one of the severe attacks, and in order to secure alleviation of the intense pain she was suffering, partook freely of hydrate of chloral, which she procured at a drug store without the knowledge, it appears, of her husband who is opposed to her using it. The neuralgia continued to bother her, and for a relief she continued to use the chloral. About nine o'clock on the following night the lady, her husband and children were in the sitting-room, and at that hour separated for their bed-rooms. The next morning the lady failed to put in an appearance at the breakfast table, and when a servant was sent to her room to ascertain the cause of her delay, it was found that she was absent. An instant investigation disclosed the fact that the lady was not in the house, and indicated that she had not been there during the night previous. The husband soon informed himself that his wife had been indulging in the use of chloral again, and surmised that her sudden and mysterious absence was due to that potent drug. Fearing that the story might gain publicity and creep into the daily journals, the husband prosecuted a quiet search for his wife for quite awhile, but without effect until she herself made known her whereabouts. This she did through a note in which she informed her husband that she was at the Kimball house. The note was written by the lady after she had passed from under the influence of the chloral. Although unable to give a clear account of the manner in which she reached the Kimball, the lady says that she knows she went from her residence to that hotel soon after her family retired.

A BLOND'S MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

"Here's a sensation for you," said Ed Murphy, the detective, to a CONSTITUTION news gatherer, yesterday. "I have been watching for you all day. But mums the word. Don't give me away, 'snake in the grass,' that's the way you get it, understand?" concluded the detective with one of his knowing winks.

"All right. Let's have it," responded the reporter as he gathered his faber and note book together.

"Well go to 116 Decatur street. In the rear you will find a Mrs. McIntyre. A few days ago her daughter disappeared, and as yet no trace of her has been ascertained. They are crazy about her. But don't give me away" was the language used in giving the ground work for the sensation.

As fast as the reporter could go he sought the location indicated, and in the rear of 116 Decatur he found a residence the door to which was wide open. In a neat, tidy room the reporter saw a lady of about thirty nursing a baby, while a child a few years older was tossing about upon the floor. A gentle tap on the door attracted the lady's attention, and the reporter asked:

"Does Mrs. McIntyre live here?"

"No, sir," was the response, in an even, subdued tone.

"Where does she live, then?" asked the reporter, as visions of a sell, perpetrated by the detective, floated before him.

"Don't know, sir," was the lady's answer.

"Well, do you know anything about the sudden disappearance of a young lady, a Miss McIntyre, whose home is near here?"

"Oh, yes, I know all about her. She is my sister."

"Well, won't you tell me?"

"Yes, walk in. Have a chair. My name is Pratt, Mrs. S. L. Pratt," and then Mrs. Pratt, in a pleasant voice, with eyes swimming in tears, related the story upon which the detective talent of Atlanta has made naught. And this is the substance of the story:

For some time Mrs. Pratt has been living at her present abode. About three months ago her sister, Miss Mary E. McIntyre, a young lady of twenty years, came from the country to live with her. Miss McIntyre was a modest, pretty country girl and for a while her greatest pleasure seemed to be her sister's children. She was a blond, with long, wavy, golden hair that hung in ringlets down her back hiding from view a pair of pretty shoulders of alabaster whiteness. Her face was round and pretty, her features even and smooth, while her mouth was the home of a set of beautiful teeth, whose whiteness was marvelous. Though of a retired disposition, she was a fluent talker, and by her sweet disposition soon attracted the attention of a young Atlantian who quickly became her slave. The courtship was a pleasant one, and soon their engagement was made known to Mrs. Pratt; but the course of true love never runs smooth, and a rupture occurred. This was some weeks ago. The separation was a torture to both, and after a short duration they met again and renewed their vows.

One evening not long since the young man called and spent some hours. The next day the young lady disappeared, and up to the present no traces of her have been secured. The disappearance was sudden and almost drove the married sister crazy, but her grief was light compared with what the young man suffered when he found the young lady gone and was unable to ascertain her whereabouts. Miss McIntyre carried with her nothing except what she wore, and left no note or message behind to indicate what she intended to do. Her conduct has been the most exemplary and no breath of wrong has ever been heard of her. She wore a dark—second mourning—calico dress. A thorough search has been made among her relatives and the detectives of the city have figured in the case, but no clue to her whereabouts has been ascertained. She has now been absent several days and still the grief of her sister and friends is great. They have no idea why she left. Is there foul play in the case?

SELLING FOR CASH.

ATLANTA, Ga., January 29.—Editors Constitution—Dear Sir: Yesterday I read D. H. Dougherty's account, as given by the reporter, of the success of his cash system: Kindly allow me to add a few words on the subject. You are doubtless aware that in the manufacturing districts of England, the co-operative trading principle is widespread and the scores of those societies are conducted on the absolute cash basis, thus showing and more than showing, proving, that it is the only safe system. I sincerely hope his pluck and energy for the benefit of his customers and the city and also the vicinities may meet continued reward and success. Below are a few figures arranged to show extent of co-operative trading in Lancashire, England: In the city of Oldham and the few villages adjacent are fifteen co-operative stores, with a total membership of 24,894. The total purchases from those fifteen stores footed up in 1881 to $4,714,770 and the profits divided amongst the 24,894 members $633,115, or in other words each member spent $189 during the year, and for that expenditure received a dividend of $25.43, equal to about 15 per cent.

There is in Lancashire 180 co-operative societies whose working capital (cash) $3,500,000. The sales of 1881 amounted to $7,380,000, upon which a profit of $905,000 was made.

In the same year 898 societies sent into government returns, showing sales $88,090,165 and a profit to shareholders, or in other words the purchasers of those 88 millions of dollars, $1,057,180.

I must now shut down for your space is valuable. I may say that my friends in that manufacturing district (Oldham) are delighted with THE CONSTITUTION and its able contents. Wishing you success I am a "subscriber."

A LEAP FOR LIBERTY.

A Convict Springs From a Car Window and Escapes From the Guard.

Yesterday when the Macon train was nearing Jonesboro, it numbered among its passengers, Mr. Willie Turner, of the penitentiary department, and three colored convicts en route to the Dade coal mines. The prisoners were Charles Brockens sent from Dawson for three years, on a charge of stealing a bale of cotton; Henry Bird, sent from Screven county for ten years, for forgery, and Henry Taylor sent from Screven for ten years for burglary. As the train neared Jonesboro, Henry Taylor succeeded in slipping the hand cuffs from his wrist, and at once sprang through the car window. As soon as he touched the ground he picked himself up and dashed off toward the woods. Mr. Turner left his other prisoners in the care of the passengers and made a break for the retreating Taylor. He did not succeed in capturing him, and returning to the train he arranged for the train men to bring the two prisoners to Atlanta, which was done, and they are now at the guard house. Mr. Turner then renewed the pursuit for Taylor but with no success as far as heard from.

The Hidden Hand.

The above dramatization of Mrs. Southworth's novel, was produced at the opera-house last night It is a pleasant and exciting story of southern life, good in details, and with nothing introduced to offend. Miss Nera Vernon appeared in the triple character of a "Newsboy," "Capitola Black," and "Capitola Lenoir." She is a very clever actress, bright, has a handsome face and figure, a sweet voice and sings with feeling. Mr. Oglesby as "Wool," was very satisfactory and amusing. He is a good comedian. In fact the play was produced by a company of much evenness. The special scenery added to the performance. The variety business introduced was well done. The cotton picking scene and the introduction of a darkey were quite taking. No matinee this afternoon, but a performance to-night, and the "Hidden Hand" is worthy a generous patronage. Quite a good audience last night who seemed to enjoy the entertainment. The audience below was much disturbed by the boisterous applause in the upper gallery, much of it entirely too loud, and some of it ill-timed. It can be said for Mr. Detlive that there certainly seemed a sufficient number of policemen in the opera house to have checked the enthusiasm.

Installation Exercises.

At a regular meeting of Georgia Lodge, No. 132, I. O. of G. T. last night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year; Thomas L. Bishop, W. C. T.; Mrs. Auten, W. V. T.; J. M. Miller, W. R. S.; George W. Ingraham, W. F. S.; Miss Ella Wilson, W. T.; W. S. Walker, W. Chaplain; J. R. George, W. M.; Miss Lottie Rynehart, W. D. M.; Mrs. E. C. Winter, W. I. G.; William Morgan, W. O. G.; W. L. Lafontain, member board of trustees. After the election the chief templar announced a reception or entertainment in honor of the marriage of four of the members, to-wit: Mr. J. T. Hubbard to Miss Brown, and Mr. W. G. Day to Miss Ella Lee. The committee having the matter in charge prepared refreshments in abundance, making the occasion one of the most pleasant in the annals of Georgia lodge. On Thursday night next the lodge will hold a meeting for the installation of the officers elect. Georgia Lodge was never in a more flourishing condition having a membership of nearly two hundred, four having been initiated last night.

Still Hung.

The jury in the conspiracy case of the United States vs. Tilley and Fricks have not agreed upon a verdict yet. The case was tried in the circuit court and the jury has been out for several days.

Burglary.

The house of Mr. Prentice, who lives on Washington street, near the city limits, was entered by burglars last night. They escaped with some goods.

Berry Escapes.

J. M. Berry was taken to Gainesville Saturday and escaped from the officer that night.

Patterson Arrested.

Patterson the man who cut Mrs. Narcissa P of Georgia, was captured yesterday in Belton.

Killed by a Switch Engine.

Albert Coker, a German who acted as "hostler" fireman for the Western and Atlantic road, was knocked down by a flat car and run over last night about 12:30, the truck frame mashing him completely in two. The car was attached to the switch engine, Enterprise, which was backing some cars in on the side track in front of the cotton factory. Mr. Levi Smith, the switch engine conductor, warned Coker off the track, down which he was walking in the same direction with the engine. Coker lived on Thurmond street and was 28 years old. He leaves a wife and five children. Coroner Hillburn will hold an inquest at 8:30 this morning at Swift's, the undertakers.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Richard Fitzgibbon, of Macon, is in the city.

George C. Grogan, of Elberton, has rooms at the Kimball.

Marcus H. Field, of Georgia, is stepping at the Kimball.

Frank E. Wood, of the Rome Courier, is at the Kimball.

J. S. Hunter, of Habersham county, Ga., is in the city.

Mr. W. F. Seals has returned from an extended trip to Florida.

Major Jos. B. Cumming, of Augusta, is registered at the Kimball.

Judge O. A Lochrane has been elected director of the Pullman car company.

Mr. A. Kahn, of Cincinnati, who has been in the city about two months, went to Louisville last night.

Judge J. W. H. Underwood, attended by Miss C. Rowell and L. A. Dean, of Rome, are stopping at the Kimball.

Mr. A. S. McBride returned yesterday, from New York, where he bought an unusual large stock of very handsome goods.

Mrs. E O. Dannelly, the authoress, formerly of Baltimore, now of Columbia, South Carolina, is visiting the city. The guest of Mrs. Dr. Chan. Jones, No. 201 Pryor street.

The following deserved compliment to a new Atlantian is from the Columbus Times:

Mr. Robt. B. Gunby, the excellent citizen and sterling gentleman will leave us to-day for Atlanta, where he goes to take the position of secretary and treasurer of the Exposition manufacturing company of that city. Mr. Gunby has for several years occupied a similar position in the Columbus manufacturing company, of this city, and carries with him a valuable experience as well as inherent qualities that especially fit him for that place In the removal of Mr. Gunby from among us, Columbus loses a citizen of whom Atlanta may well be proud. We commend him to our friends there, and will express the hope that his days may be long and prosperous.

Mardi Gras at New Orleans.

February 6th is Shrove Tuesday this year, and one week after, on Tuesday, February 13th, the 153d Grand Monthly Drawing of The Louisiana State Lottery will occur, when $75,000 will go to some happy mortal who has invested by sending $5 to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., or else it will be scattered into fifths at One Dollar each, and over $265,000 paid as prizes. The tickets are only 100,000 in number, and over two hundred thousand visitors are expected at New Orleans next Mardi Gras.

Life on The Mississippi.

This new book of Mark Twain will be issued about the 15th of February, from the Subscription Book publishing house of J. H. Chambers & Co., of St. Louis, Chicago and Atlanta. The above firm are general agents for the west and south.

It is unnecessary to speak of the book, or of the writings of Mark Twain; his reputation is national, and all he writes is eagerly sought for by readers of all classes.

SIDEWALK NOTES.

The old year with much of its care and trouble has passed away. Ye there lingers behind much distress from the tortures of Rheumatism. This can only be relieved by the use of Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure. Sold by Hutchison & Bro.

One Sacramento, Cal., hop grower harvested 700 bales last year, for which he received $85,0.0 cash.

"Figures are not always facts," but the incontrovertible facts concerning Kidney Wort are better than most figures. For instance: 'It is curing everybody," writes a druggist. "Kidney Wort is the most popular medicine we sell." It should be by right, for no other medicine has such specific action on the liver, bowels and kidneys. Do not fail to try it.

TO CONSUMERS OF GUANO.

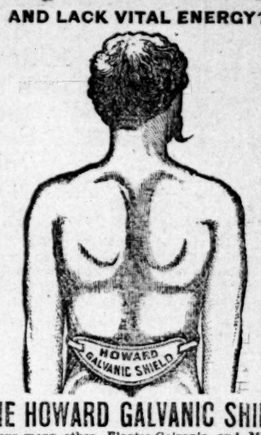

DURING THE MANY YEARS THAT THE Pacific Guano company has manufactured and sold its well known brand of Soluble Pacific Guano various parties being aware of the great popularity of this Fertilizer, have, from time to time, put into market articles bearing names as nearly like that of our brand as was safe for them to do, probably relying upon the fact that said Soluble Pacific Guano was very commonly spoken of by planters as "Pacific" or "Guano," or "Soluble Pacific," or "Pacific Guano." These attempts have failed to build up a permanent trade, probably because of the fact that the parties so appropriating our name relied upon that name, rather than the quality of their goods. We have from time to time called the attention of planters to these facts, either directly or through the late John S. Reese, Esq., of Baltimore. We are informed that one or more new brands are now being put upon the market, combining the well known and old name of "PACIFIC," either as "Unmoniated Pacific," "Georgia Pacific," or similar forms and we beg to call the attention of planters to the fact that every sack of genuine SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO manufactured by the Pacific Guano company has been, or is, branded with the name of the former general selling agent, John S. Reese, or with that of the present selling agents, GLIDDEN & CURTIS. None other is genuine, and our friends and patrons will do well to examine carefully the packages received by them this season. The real SOLUBLE PACIFIC GUANO will be found to be same standard quality as heretofore. No change has taken place in it, notwithstanding recent changes in some general agencies. Our representatives for the state of Georgia are Messrs Woods & Co., Savannah; Messrs J. O. Mathewson & Co., Augusta; Messrs Adair & Bro., Atlanta. PACIFIC GUANO CO.,
